Aloes The Definitive Guide:

Aloes Susan Carter, 2011 In addition to being an important component of the floras of Africa Arabia and Madagascar aloes are widely cultivated by hobbyists in Europe the Americas Australasia Africa India and other parts of the world Aloe vera is one of the most important cultivated medicinal plants Consequently they are of considerable importance in the horticultural trade and for their commercial value Aloes The definitive guide is a comprehensive account of all known aloes For the first time since the publication of G W Reynolds two books over 40 years ago all currently accepted Aloe taxa are brought together with descriptions illustrations reference topotologues location of types distribution habitat and brief notes on diagnostic features and relationships Dichotomous keys lead to identification of all taxa arranged in 10 groups based on habit and size from small to large An extensive illustrated chapter on the history of discovery especially in tropical Africa adds interest The text includes a pictorial glossary bibliography and index with synonyms A must have reference for succulent plant enthusiasts hobbyists nurserymen CITES agencies research workers and libraries and botanists Aloes S. Carter, Leonard E. Newton, J. J. Lavranos, C. C. Walker, 2021

Field Guide to Trees of Southern Africa Braam van Wyk, 2013-08-06 This comprehensively updated and expanded edition of the region's best selling field guide to trees offers much much more than the highly successful first edition Fully updated text including additional species entries and distribution maps numerous new photographs and a new 87 page section of full tree photographs makes this well loved guide even more indispensable in the field Southern Africa has a rich variety of tree species with an estimated 2 100 indigenous species and more than 100 naturalised aliens Field Guide to Trees of Southern Africa describes and illustrates more than 1 000 of these focusing on trees that are the most common and most likely to be encountered Species are logically arranged in 43 groups based on easy to observe leaf and stem features and each account is illustrated by full colour photographs of the plant's diagnostic parts The text also touches on the practical uses of the plants

Advanced Technologies for the Quality Control and Standardization of Plant Based Medicines Jiang Xu, Caroline Howard, 2020-06-18 Herbs and herbal products are of paramount importance for human health To be able to guarantee safety and quality standards and testing methods are needed Pharmacopoeias contain quality control protocols setting the standards which are then required by governments The quality traits are many including the intrinsic variables of medicinal plant e.g. the levels of the active compounds and the absence of possibly natural occurring toxic compounds On the other hand many quality traits are related to agricultural conditions and practices or to the harvesting and post harvest processing With so many variables quality control of the end product becomes extremely complex time consuming and costly To ensure the quality of medicinal plants for human consumption quality management the use of good practices at each step from seed to final product becomes a crucial aspect In general quality control includes the inspection of the product's identity purity and content based on its physical chemical or biological properties To ensure the quality of herbal medications criteria such as botanical quality type of preparation physical constants adulteration contaminants chemical constituents pesticides residues et al should be examined Meanwhile authentication of herbs is needed to avoid possible adulteration or contaminating plants even toxic herbs such as Aristolochia species Many of the methods are long standing such as microscopy in combination with color reactions but some 50 years ago chromatography developed as a major tool for both qualitative and quantitative analysis of herbal preparations Nowadays research is working on the improvement of these methods and on the development of novel tools For instance next generation sequencing and mass spectrometry imaging are emerging as new technologies for the quality control of herbal medicines With these technologies quick testing of herbal products and of mixed herbal powder preparations including the testing for specific plant parts botanical drugs can be achieved Also novel chemical tools such as metabolomics and Near Infrared Red NIR spectroscopy are being developed as powerful tools to identify and to link these with activity by using chemometric tools such as multivariate analysis Finally progress of informatic tools such as machine learning helps to deal with the big data generated by sequencing or mass spectrometry However these new technologies like all other new born technologies should be tested and perfected for a broad range of products
