Around the mid-1850s, Mendel crossed true-breeding purple-flowered pea plants with true-breeding white-flowered pea plants. The results of his research provided us with the basic principles of heredity.

Drag the terms on the left to the appropriate blanks on the right to complete the sentences. Not all terms will be used. - answer Every gene is a sequence of DNA nucleotides at a specific position along a chromosome called a locus.

Diploid cells have two sets of chromosomes, one set inherited from each parent, that form homologous pairs.

The homologs of a chromosome pair contain the same genetic loci. Therefore, each genetic locus is represented twice in a diploid cell.

Variations in inherited characteristics is due to the presence of alleles, which are alternative versions of genes.

You know that alleles are alternative versions of a gene. What makes alleles different from each other? - answer They have different sequences of DNA nucleotides.

In the video, the paternal parent carries the allele for purple flowers, and the maternal parent carries the allele for white flowers. What would happen if the maternal parent carried the purple allele, and the paternal parent carried the white allele? - answer The F1 hybrid pea plants would still produce purple flowers.

In pea plants, the purple allele is sufficient for making purple flowers, even if one of the homologous chromosomes carries the white allele. Which of the following statements are true in this case?

Select all that apply. - answer The purple allele is the dominant allele.

The white allele is the recessive allele.

One purple allele results in enough purple pigment for the flowers to be purple.

Mendel studied pea plants dihybrid for seed shape (round versus wrinkled) and seed color (yellow versus green). Recall that the round allele (R) is dominant to the wrinkled allele (r) and Mathematical Biology James D. Murray,2013-06-29 Mathematics has always benefited from its involvement with developing sciences Each successive interaction revitalises and enhances the field Biomedical science is clearly the premier science of the foreseeable future For the continuing health of their subject mathematicians must become involved with biology With the example of how mathematics has benefited from and influenced physics it is clear that if mathematicians do not become involved in the biosciences they will simply not be a part of what are likely to be the most important and exciting scientific discoveries of all time Mathematical biology is a fast growing well recognised albeit not clearly defined subject and is to my mind the most exciting modern application of mathematics The increasing use of mathematics in biology is inevitable as biol ogy becomes more quantitative The complexity of the biological sciences makes interdisciplinary involvement essential For the mathematician biology opens up new and exciting branches while for the biologist mathematical modelling offers another research tool commensurate with a new powerful laboratory technique but only if used appropriately and its limitations recognised However the use of esoteric mathematics arrogantly applied to biological problems by mathematicians who know little about the real biology together with unsubstantiated claims as to how important such theories are does little to promote the interdisciplinary involvement which is so essential Mathematical biology research to be useful and interesting must be relevant biologically
