buttons. When the firing switch is closed, a red light on the control box lights up to warn the gunner that the gun is ready to fire and that he should be careful not to accidentally discharge the piece.

- (2) Firing buttons. These enable the gunner to fire without removing his hands from the traversing and elevating controls. These buttons are located on the power traverse control handle, on the elevating handwheel (fig. 9), or on the turret floor for foot operation (fig. 7).

These instruments fall into three groups: direct fire sights, auxiliary fire control equipment, and vision devices. They will be more completely described and discussed in succeeding chapters of this manual.

b. Direct Fire Sights. These are the instruments through which the gunner looks to lay his gun on a target. Each gunner has two direct fire sights—a periscope and a telescope (fig. 5). Generally, both have the same functions, although each has its advantages—as will be discussed later in this manual. In the event that either the periscope or the telescope are damaged the gun can be laid with the remaining instrument. The sight reticle, lines etched on one sight lens, enables the gunner to lay the gun for range and deflection. After selecting
