Activity-Based Costing Robert S. Kaplan, Steven R. Anderson, 2007-02-22 In the classroom ABC looks like a great way to manage a company's resources But many executives who have tried to implement ABC on a large scale in their organizations have found the approach limiting and frustrating Why The employee surveys that companies used to estimate resources required for business activities proved too time consuming expensive and irritating to employees This book shows you how to implement time driven activity based costing TDABC an easier and more powerful way to implement ABC You can now estimate directly the resource demands imposed by each business transaction product or customer The payoff You spend less time and money obtaining and maintaining TDABC data and more time addressing problems that TDABC reveals such as inefficient processes unprofitable products and customers and excess capacity The authors also show how to use TDABC to link strategic planning to operational budgeting to enhance the due diligence process for mergers and acquisitions and to support continuous improvement activities such as lean management and benchmarking In presenting their model the authors define the two questions required to build TDABC 1 How much does it cost per time unit to supply resource capacity for each business process 2 How much resource capacity time is required to perform work for a company's many transactions products and customers The book demonstrates how to develop simple valid answers to these two questions Kaplan and Anderson illustrate the TDABC approach with a wealth of case studies in diverse settings based on actual implementations
