

varied by pressing a string against the fingerboard with the fingers to change the length L of the vibrating portion of the string. Increasing the tension F increases the wave speed v and thus increases the frequency (and the pitch). All string instruments are “tuned” to the correct frequencies by varying the tension; you tighten the string to raise the pitch. Finally, increasing the mass per unit length μ decreases the wave speed and thus the frequency. The lower notes on a steel guitar are produced by thicker strings, and one reason for winding the bass strings of a piano with wire is to obtain the desired low frequency from a relatively short string.

Wind instruments such as saxophones and trombones also have normal modes. As for stringed instruments, the frequencies of these normal modes determine the pitch of the musical tones that these instruments produce. We’ll discuss

EXAMPLE 15.10 Tuning a guitar

A guitar string is 65.0 cm long and has a mass of 2.00 g. The string is held under a tension of 80.0 N. The string is fixed at both ends. (a) What is the speed of transverse waves on the string? (b) What is the wavelength of the standing wave that has the lowest frequency? (c) What is the frequency of this standing wave?

IDENTIFY

Part (a) asks for the wave speed, which is the same as the speed of transverse waves on a string. We can find this speed using the tension and the mass per unit length of the string. Part (b) asks for the wavelength of the standing wave that has the lowest frequency. This is the fundamental frequency, which corresponds to the first harmonic. The wavelength of the standing wave is twice the length of the string.

SET UP

For part (a), we use the equation $v = \sqrt{F/\mu}$ to find the speed of transverse waves on the string. For part (b), we use the equation $\lambda = 2L$ to find the wavelength of the standing wave.

EXAMPLE 15.11 Finding the speed of a transverse wave on a string

A string is fixed at both ends and has a length of 1.00 m. The string is held under a tension of 80.0 N. The string is fixed at both ends. (a) What is the speed of transverse waves on the string? (b) What is the wavelength of the standing wave that has the lowest frequency? (c) What is the frequency of this standing wave?

IDENTIFY

Part (a) asks for the wave speed, which is the same as the speed of transverse waves on a string. We can find this speed using the tension and the mass per unit length of the string. Part (b) asks for the wavelength of the standing wave that has the lowest frequency. This is the fundamental frequency, which corresponds to the first harmonic. The wavelength of the standing wave is twice the length of the string.

For part (b), we use the equation $\lambda = 2L$ to find the wavelength of the standing wave.

For part (d), we use the equation $f = v/\lambda$ to find the frequency of the standing wave.

For part (e), we use the equation $f = v/\lambda$ to find the frequency of the standing wave.

For part (f), we use the equation $f = v/\lambda$ to find the frequency of the standing wave.

For part (g), we use the equation $f = v/\lambda$ to find the frequency of the standing wave.

For part (h), we use the equation $f = v/\lambda$ to find the frequency of the standing wave.
