Jordan Newton Stefan Rabitsch Maryanne Rhettt and Philip Smith History has always been a matter of arranging evidence into a narrative but the public debate over the meanings we attach to a given history can seem particularly acute in our current age Like all artistic mediums comics possess the power to mold history into shapes that serve its prospective audience and creator both It makes sense then that history no stranger to the creation of hagiographies particularly in the service of nationalism and other political ideologies is so easily summoned to the panelled page Comics like statues museums and other vehicles for historical narrative make both monsters and heroes of men while fueling combative beliefs in personal versions of United States history Drawing the Past Volume 1 Comics and the Historical Imagination in the United States the first book in a two volume series provides a map of current approaches to comics and their engagement with historical representation The first section of the book on history and form explores the existence shape and influence of comics as a medium The second section concerns the question of trauma understood both as individual traumas that can shape the relationship between the narrator and object and historical traumas that invite a reassessment of existing social economic and cultural assumptions The final section on mythic histories delves into ways in which comics add to the mythology of the US Together both volumes bring together a range of different approaches to diverse material and feature remarkable scholars from all over the world

White Saviorism and Popular Culture Kathryn Mathers, 2022-09-15 This book interrogates the white savior industrial complex by exploring how America continues to present an imagined Africa as a space for its salvation in the 21st century Through close readings of multiple mediated sites where Americans imagine Africa White Saviorism and Popular Culture examines how an era of new media technologies is reshaping encounters between Africans and westerners in the 21st century especially as Africans living and experiencing the consequences of western imaginings are also mobilizing the same mediated spaces Kathryn Mathers emphasizes that the articulation of different forms of humanitarian engagement between America and Africa marks the necessity to interrogate the white savior industrial complex and the ways Africa is being asked to fulfill American needs as life in the United States becomes increasingly intolerable for Black Americans Drawing on case studies from Savior Barbie barbiesavior to Black Panther and Black is King Mathers posits that global imperialism not only still reigns but that it also disguises white supremacy by outsourcing Black American emancipation onto an imagined Africa This is crucial reading for courses on the cultural politics of representation particularly in relation to race social media and popular culture as well as anyone interested in issues of representation in the global humanitarianism industry
