Petrakis,2014-02-17 It is a wide spread belief that the cultural background inhered in a society affects the requirements of economic development This relationship requires theoretical and empirical justification The present book provides this together with an analysis of the development of cultural background itself Cultural background is embodied in political institutions in transactions knowledge incentives in social capital even in the tangibles of the economy Thus economic development is shaped and the rate of growth is affected Conversely economic development affects cultural background When this interaction takes place at a non developmental cultural background level which is associated with low growth rates then a growth trap is formed Within such a growth trap economic policy public and monetary is relatively deactivated and the conditions influencing the change in cultural background and its timing are of primary importance

Forces of Reproduction Stefania Barca,2020-11-26 The concept of Anthropocene has been incorporated within a hegemonic narrative that represents Man as the dominant geological force of our epoch emphasizing the destruction and salvation power of industrial technologies This Element develops a counter hegemonic narrative based on the perspective of earthcare labour or the forces of reproduction It brings to the fore the historical agency of reproductive and subsistence workers as those subjects that through both daily practices and organized political action take care of the biophysical conditions for human reproduction thus keeping the world alive Adopting a narrative justice approach and placing feminist political ecology right at the core of its critique of the Anthropocene storyline this Element offers a novel and timely contribution to the environmental humanities      Distributional Aspects of Energy and Climate Policies Mark A. Cohen, Don Fullerton, Robert H. Topel, 2013-05-31 Governments around the globe have begun to implement various actions to limit carbon emissions and so combat climate change This book brings together some of the leading scholars in environmental and climate economics to examine the distributional consequences of policies that are designed to reduce these carbon emissions Whether through a carbon tax cap and trade system or other mechanisms most proposals to reduce carbon emissions include some kind of carbon pricing system shifting the costs of emissions onto polluters and providing an incentive to find the least costly methods of abatement This standard efficiency justification for pricing carbon also has important distributional consequences a problem that is often ignored by economists while being a major focus of attention in the political arena Leading scholars in environmental and climate economics take up these issues to examine such questions as Will the costs fall on current or future generations Will they fall on the rich poor middle class or on everyone proportionally Which countries will benefit and which will suffer Students and scholars interested in climate change along with policy makers will find this lively volume an invaluable addition to the quest for information on this globally important issue      Institutions and Economic Growth in Asia Flora Huang, Horace Yeung, 2018-03-20 This book explores the role of institutions in economic growth looking in particular at specific Asian countries and at particular cities within those countries It considers a wide range of factors besides institutions including the law cultural factors and overall government arrangements The differences between the countries studied are highlighted and the impact of these differences assessed the impact of English common law on arrangements in Hong Kong Singapore and Malaysia sharia law in Malaysia the differing lengths of time of colonial rule the extent to which Chinese family businesses control an economy Also studied are the degree to which the law is effectively applied and a range of other social economic and cultural factors The book s conclusions as to which factors have the greatest impact will be of considerable interest to economists of Asia and those interested in economic growth more widely      The Political Economy of Everyday Life in Africa Wale Adebani, 2017 Multi disciplinary examination of the role of ordinary African people as agents in the generation and distribution of well being in modern Africa What are the fundamental issues processes agency and dynamics that shape the political economy of life in modern Africa In this book the contributors experts in anthropology history political science economics conflict and peace studies philosophy and language examine the opportunities and constraints placed on living livelihoods and sustainable life on the continent Reflecting on why and how the political economy of life approach is essential for understanding the social process in modern Africa they engage with the intellectual oeuvre of the influential Africanist economic anthropologist Jane Guyer who provides an Afterword The contributors analyse the political economy of everyday life as it relates to money and currency migrant labour forces and informal and formal economies dispossession of land debt and indebtedness socio economic marginality and the entrenchment of colonial and apartheid pasts Wale Adebani is the Rhodes Professor of Race Relations at the University of
