Women's Desistance in a Colonial Context Grace Low, 2025-02-18 This book adds to global knowledge of pathways out of crime desistance by exploring the desistance narratives of 15 women with histories of imprisonment in Aotearoa New Zealand 10 of whom identify as M ori New Zealand's Indigenous population By voicing these women's experiences the book adds to desistance research by moving beyond the mainstream Western nations which dominate desistance literature such as the United States and UK to explore how historical and structural influences including Aotearoa New Zealand's colonial history shape women's offending and desistance trajectories This book explores the women's journeys in and out of crime including the various socio structural constraints which could impede the women's desistance efforts especially for M ori women who are overrepresented in Aotearoa New Zealand's prison population This book explores the influence of the women's personal relationships with families of origin wh nau intimate partners friends associates and children and their institutional interactions i e their experiences of employment drug alcohol addiction treatment and other forms of rehabilitative support The book also takes a close look at the role of housing and the more subjective notion of home in the women's offending and desistance journeys It makes recommendations for policy and practice to support women leaving prison in Aotearoa New Zealand and internationally with an emphasis on the importance of wider community support This book makes an original contribution to desistance literature by bringing greater conceptual clarity to gendered aspects of the desistance process and how these manifest in a colonial setting It will appeal to students and scholars of criminology desistance gender studies recovery from addiction and to practitioners and policy makers in these fields Modeling Demographic Processes in Marked Populations David L. Thomson,Evan G. Cooch,Michael J. Conroy,2008-12-11 Here biologists and statisticians come together in an interdisciplinary synthesis with the aim of developing new methods to overcome the most significant challenges and constraints faced by quantitative biologists seeking to model demographic rates
