1. Walk me through your background/resume

Dial-in a cohesive 90-second resume walkthrough that focuses on the positive and motivating factors behind every transition (school to job, job to better job, most recent job to grad school). 2. Why investment banking?

The answer to this question should be tailored uniquely to you and to the firm you are interviewing with. While answering this question, it is key to capitalize on your previous professional/leadership experience, highlight it and create a logical path as to why you are now trying to break into investment banking.

III. 15 Common Investment Banking Technical Questions

1. What are the three main financial statements?

Sample Answer:

The three main financial statements are:

- Income Statement
- Balance Sheet
- Statement of Cash Flows

The Income Statement discloses a company's revenues and expenses, which together yield net income over a period of time. The Balance Sheet discloses a company's assets, liabilities, and equity on a specific date. The Cash Flow Statement starts with net income from the Income Statement, then adjusts for non-cash expenses, non-operating expenses like capital expenditures, changes in working capital, or debt repayment and issuance, to arrive at the company's closing cash balance.
