memoir that explores the exhilarating discomfiting and ultimately healing process of Polish Jewish reconciliation taking place in Poland today Although an estimated 80 percent of American Jews are of Polish descent many in the postwar generation and those born later know little about their families connection to their ancestral home In fact many Jews continue to think of Poland as a bastion of anti-Semitism since nearly the entire population of Polish Jewry was killed in the Holocaust The reality is more complex although German occupied Poland was the site of great persecution towards Jews it was also the epicenter of European Jewish life for centuries Louise Steinman sets out to examine the burgeoning Polish Jewish reconciliation movement through the lens of her own family's history joining the ranks of Jews of Polish descent who are confronting both Poland's heroism and occupation afflicted atrocities and who are seeking to reconnect with their families Polish roots

Writing Exile: The Discourse of Displacement in Greco-Roman Antiquity and Beyond Jan Felix Gaertner, 2007-02-28 Exile and

Modernism and Mourning Patricia Rae, 2007 The essays in Modernism and Mourning examine the work of mourning in modernist literature or more precisely its propensity for resisting this work Drawing from recent developments in the theory and cultural history of mourning its contributors explore the various ways in which modernist writers repudiate Freud's famous injunction to mourners to work through their grief endorsing instead a resistant or melancholic mourning that shapes both their themes and their radical experiments with form The emerging picture of the pervasive influence of melancholic mourning in modernist literature casts new light on longstanding critical arguments especially those about the politics of modernism It also makes clear the pertinence of this literature to the present day in which the catastrophic losses of 9/11 of retaliatory war of racially motivated genocide of the AIDS epidemic have made the work of mourning a subject of widespread interest and debate Patricia Rae is Head of the Department of English at Queen's University
