A Reason To Live Reason Series 3:

A Reason to Live Vicki Hutton, 2019-06-14 A Reason to Live explores the human animal relationship through the narratives of eleven people living with HIV and their animal companions. The narratives based on a series of interviews with HIV positive individuals and their animal companions in Australia span the entirety of the HIV epidemic from public awareness and discrimination in the 1980s and 1990s to survival and hope in the twenty first century. Each narrative is explored within the context of theory for example attachment theory the biophilia hypothesis neurochemical and neurophysiological effects laughter play death anxiety and stigma in order to understand the unique bond between human and animal during an epidemic of stigma. A consistent theme is that these animals provided their human companions with a reason to live throughout the epidemic. Long term survivors describe past animal companions who intuitively understood their needs and offered unconditional love and support during this turbulent period. More recently diagnosed HIV positive narrators describe animal companions within the context of hope and the wellness narrative of living and aging with HIV in the twenty first century. Bringing together these narratives offers insight into one aspect of the multifaceted HIV epidemic when human turned against human and helps explain why it was frequently left to the animals to support their human companions. Importantly it recognizes the enduring bond between human and animal within the context of theory and narrative thus creating a cultural memory in a way that has never been done before. Reasons to Live Warren

Philosophers have argued back and forth about whether the fear of death can be justified by arguments of rationality Ewin philosophy U of Western Australia suggests that both sides have gotten the question wrong Fear of death he suggests is prerational underlying all of the concepts with which we reason Rather than reifying Reason we should see reasons as emerging from a complex of emotion cognition and other aspects of being human that emerged from our evolutionary history In approaching reason and death in this way we can shed new light on the moral judgements on euthanasia and related questions Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR
