Archaeological Human Remains Global Perspectives Springerbriefs In Archaeology:

Archaeological Human Remains Barra O'Donnabhain, María Cecilia Lozada, 2014-06-10 This volume addresses the directions that studies of archaeological human remains have taken in a number of different countries where attitudes range from widespread support to prohibition Overlooked in many previous publications this diversity in attitudes is examined through a variety of lenses including academic origins national identities supporting institutions archaeological context and globalization The volume situates this diversity of attitudes by examining past and current tendencies in studies of archaeologically retrieved human remains across a range of geopolitical settings In a context where methodological approaches have been increasingly standardized in recent decades the volume poses the question if this standardization has led to a convergence in approaches to archaeological human remains or if significant differences remain between practitioners in different countries The volume also explores the future trajectories of the study of skeletal remains in the different jurisdictions under scrutiny

Archaeological Human Remains Barra O'Donnabhain, Maria Cecilia Lozada, 2018-06-18 This book expands on Archaeological Human Remains Global Perspectives that was published in the Springer Briefs series in 2014 and which had a strong focus on post colonial countries In the current volume the editors include papers that deal with non Anglophone European traditions such as Portugal Germany and France In addition authors continue the exploration of osteological trajectories that are not well documented in the West such as Senegal China and Russia The lasting legacies of imperialism communism and colonialism are apparent as the authors of the individual country profiles examine the historical roots of the study of archaeological human remains and the challenges encountered while also considering the likely future directions likely of this multi faceted discipline in different world areas

Archaeology of the Southern Appalachians and Adjacent Watersheds Thomas R. Whyte, C. Clifford Boyd, 2023-06-13 This book presents archaeological research from the Early and Middle Archaic in the Southeast in part as a tribute to the career of Jefferson Chapman longtime director of the McClung Museum of Natural History and Culture on the Knoxville campus of the University of Tennessee With essays written by many of Chapman s former students each essay probes a site critical to our understanding of ancient southeastern peoples as well as Chapman s original work at Tellico and his legacy to the field of archaeology

Global Perspectives on Long Term Community Resource Management Ludomir R. Lozny, Thomas H. McGovern, 2019-06-21 Communal level resource management successes and failures comprise complex interactions that involve local regional and increasingly global scale political economic and environmental changes shown to have recurring patterns and trajectories The human past provides examples of long term millennial and century scale successes followed by undesired transitions collapse and rapid failure of collaborative management cooperation on the decadal scale Management of scarce resources and common properties presents a critical challenge for planners attempting to avoid the tragedy of the commons in this century Here anthropologists human ecologists archaeologists and environmental scientists discuss strategies for social well being in the context of diminishing resources and increasing competition The contributors in this volume revisit tragedy of the commons also referred to as drama or comedy of the commons and examine new data and theories to mitigate pressures and devise models for sustainable communal welfare and development They present twelve archaeological historic and ethnographic cases of user managed resources to demonstrate that very basic community level participatory governance can be a successful strategy to manage short term risk and benefits The book connects past present future by presenting geographically and chronologically spaced out examples of communal level governance strategies and overviews of the current cutting edge research The lesson we learn from studying past responses to various ecological stresses is that we must not wait for a disaster to happen to react but must react to mitigate conditions for emerging disasters

Metals in Past Societies Shadreck Chirikure, 2015-03-18 This book seeks to communicate to both a global and local audience the key attributes of pre industrial African metallurgy such as technological variation across space and time methods of mining and extractive metallurgy and the fabrication of metal objects These processes were transformative in a physical and metaphoric sense which made them total social facts Because the production and use of metals was an accretion of various categories of practice a chaîne opératoire conceptual and theoretical framework that simultaneously considers the embedded technological and anthropological factors was used The book focuses on Africa s different regions as roughly defined by cultural geography On the one hand there is North Africa Egypt the Egyptian Sudan and the Horn of Africa which share cultural inheritances with the Middle East and on the other is Africa south of the Sahara and the Sudan which despite interacting with the former is remarkably different in terms of technological practice For example not only is the timing of metallurgy different but so is the infrastructure for working metals and the associated symbolic and sociological factors The cultural valuation of metals and the social positions of metal workers were different too although there is evidence of some values transfer and multi directional technological cross borrowing The multitude of permutations associated with metals production and use amply demonstrates that metals participated in the production and reproduction of society. Despite huge temporal and spatial differences, there are so many common factors between African metallurgy and that of other regions of the world. For example, the role of magic and ritual in metal working is almost universal, be it in Bolivia, Nepal, Malawi, Timna, Togo, or Zimbabwe. Similarly, techniques of mining were constrained by the underlying geology, but this should not in any way suggest that Africa's metallurgy was derivative or that the continent had no initiative. Rather, it demonstrates that when confronted with similar challenges, humanity in different regions of the world responded to identical challenges in predictable ways, mediated as mediated by the prevailing cultural context. The success of the use of historical and ethnographic data in understanding variation and improvisation in African metallurgical practices flags the potential utility of these sources in Asia, Latin America, and Europe. Some nuance is, however, needed because it is simply naïve to assume that everything depicted in the history or ethnography has a parallel in the past, and vice versa. Rather, the confluence of archaeology, history, and ethnography becomes a pedestal for dialogue between different sources, subjects, and ideas that is important for broadening our knowledge of global categories of metallurgical practice.

The Maya World Scott R. Hutson, Traci Ardren, 2020-06-17. The Maya World brings together over 60 authors representing the fields of archaeology, art history, epigraphy, geography, and ethnography who explore cutting edge research on every major facet of the ancient Maya and all sub regions within the Maya world. The Maya world, which covers Guatemala, Belize, and parts of Mexico, Honduras, and El Salvador, contains over a hundred ancient sites that are open to tourism, eight of which are UNESCO World Heritage Sites, and many thousands more that have been dug or await investigation. In addition to captivating the lay public, the ancient Maya have attracted scores of major interdisciplinary research expeditions and hundreds of smaller projects going back to the 19th century, making them one of the best known ancient cultures. The Maya World explores their renowned writing system, towering stone pyramids, exquisitely painted murals, and elaborate funerary tombs, as well as their creative agricultural strategies, complex social, economic, and political relationships, widespread interactions with other societies, and remarkable cultural resilience in the face of historical ruptures. This is an invaluable reference volume for scholars of the ancient Maya, including archaeologists, historians, and anthropologists.

Mobile Pastoralist Households Jean-Luc Houle, 2024-10-01. Mobile pastoralist activities occur at different scales across the landscape, including local, regional, and supra regional scales. Most archaeological studies of mobile pastoralist social organization have focused on the latter two scales via the extant monumental and herding landscapes. Household levels of analysis figure much less in these studies. This volume brings together the work of archaeologists currently engaged in mobile pastoralist household research in different regions of the world to highlight the importance of household studies and the utility of both archaeological and ethnoarchaeological approaches in understanding mobile pastoralist household formation, continuity, and adaptation to environmental, social, economic, and political change.
