Archaeologies Of The Greek Past Archaeologies Of The Greek Past:

Archaeologies of the Greek Past Susan E. Alcock, 2002-08-15 Social memory the shared remembrances of group experience creates shared identity and provides people with both an image of their past and a design for their future But how are we to conceive the memories of past peoples such as for example the ancient Greeks This 2002 book makes a strong case for the use of archaeology particularly the evidence of landscape and of monuments to trace patterns in commemoration and forgetfulness Three detailed case studies early Roman Greece Hellenistic and Roman Crete and Messenia in Archaic to Hellenistic times focus on societies undergoing different types of social transformation Material evidence allows us to observe how groups responded to these challenges and how they made different uses of the past in the past Community and Identity at the Edges of the Classical World Aaron W. Irvin, 2020-09-28 A timely and academically significant contribution to scholarship on community identity and globalization in the Roman and Hellenistic worlds Community and Identity at the Edges of the Classical World examines the construction of personal and communal identities in the ancient world exploring how globalism multi culturalism and other macro events influenced micro identities throughout the Hellenistic and Roman empires This innovative volume discusses where contact and the sharing of ideas was occurring in the time period and applies modern theories based on networks and communication to historical and archaeological data A new generation of international scholars challenge traditional views of Classical history and offer original perspectives on the impact globalizing trends had on localized areas insights that resonate with similar issues today This singular resource presents a broad multi national view rarely found in western collected volumes including Serbian Macedonian and Russian scholarship on the Roman Empire as well as on Roman and Hellenistic archaeological sites in Eastern Europe Topics include Egyptian identity in the Hellenistic world cultural identity in Roman Greece Romanization in Slovenia Balkan Latin the provincial organization of cults in Roman Britain and Soviet studies of Roman Empire and imperialism Serving as a synthesis of contemporary scholarship on the wider topic of identity and community this volume Provides an expansive materialist approach to the topic of globalization in the Roman world Examines ethnicity in the Roman empire from the viewpoint of minority populations Offers several views of metascholarship a growing sub discipline that compares ancient material to modern scholarship Covers a range of themes time periods and geographic areas not included in most western publications Community and Identity at the Edges of the Classical World is a valuable resource for academics researchers and graduate students examining identity and ethnicity in the ancient world as well as for those working in multiple fields of study from Classical Hellenistic and Roman historians to the study of ethnicity identity and globalizing trends in time The Greeks and Their Past Jonas Grethlein, 2010-02-04 Investigates literary memory in the fifth century BCE covering poetry and oratory as well as the first Greek historians Antiquarianisms Benjamin Anderson, Felipe Rojas, 2017-05-31 Antiquarianism and collecting have been associated intimately with European imperial and colonial enterprises although both existed long before the early modern period and both were and continue to be practiced in places other than Europe. Scholars have made significant progress in the documentation and analysis of indigenous antiquarian traditions but the clear cut distinction between indigenous and colonial archaeologies has obscured the intense and dynamic interaction between these seemingly different endeavours. This book concerns the divide between local and foreign antiquarianisms focusing on case studies drawn primarily from the Mediterranean and the Americas. Both regions host robust pre modern antiquarian traditions that have continued to develop during periods of colonialism. In both regions moreover colonial encounters have been mediated by the antiquarian practices and preferences of European elites. The two regions also exhibit salient differences. For example Europeans claimed the antiquities of the eastern Mediterranean as part of their own classical heritage whereas they perceived those of the Americas as essentially alien even as they attempted to understand them by analogy to the classical world. These basic points of comparison and contrast provide a framework for conjoint analysis of the emergence of hybrid or cross bred antiquarianisms. Rather than assuming that interest in antiquity is a human universal this book explores the circumstances under which the past itself is produced and transformed through encounters between antiquarian traditions over common objects of interpretation.

Singing for the Gods Barbara Kowalzig, 2007-12-13. Singing for the Gods develops a new approach towards an old question in the study of religion: the relationship of myth and ritual. Focusing on ancient Greek religion, Barbara Kowalzig exploits the joint occurrence of myth and ritual in archaic and classical Greek song culture. She shows how choral performances of myth and ritual taking place all over the ancient Greek world in the early fifth century BC help to effect social and political change in their own time. Religious song emerges as integral to a rapidly changing society hovering between local regional and panhellenic identities and between aristocratic rule and democracy. Drawing on contemporary debates on myth, ritual and performance in social anthropology, modern history and theatre studies, this book establishes Greek religion's dynamic role and gives religious song culture its deserved place in the study of Greek history.

The Archaeology of the Colonized Michael Given, 2004-07-31. The first book to integrate fully the archaeological study of the landscape with the concerns of colonial and postcolonial history, theory and scholarship. The Archaeology of the Colonized focuses on the experience of the colonized in their landscape, setting looking at case studies from areas of the world not often considered in the postcolonial debate. It offers original, exciting approaches to the growing area of research in archaeology and colonialism. From the pyramids of Old Kingdom Egypt to illicit whisky distilling in nineteenth century Scotland and from the Roman roads of Turkey to the threshing floors of Cyprus under British colonial rule, the case studies assist Dr Given as he uses the archaeological evidence to create a vivid picture of how the lives and identities of farmers, artisans and labourers were affected by colonial systems of oppressive taxation, bureaucracy, forced labour and ideological control. This will be valuable to students, scholars or professionals investigating the relationship between local community and central control in a wide range of historical and archaeological contexts.

Empire of Images Alyson Roy,2024-04-01 Rome was an empire of images especially images that bolstered their imperial identity Visual and material items portraying battles myths captives trophies and triumphal parades were particularly important across the Roman empire But where did these images originate and what shaped them Empire of Images explores the development of the Roman visual language of power in the Republic in Iberian Peninsula the Gallic provinces and Greece and Macedonia centering the development of imperial imagery in overseas conquest Drawing on a range of material evidence this book argues that Roman imperial imagery developed through prolonged interaction with and adaptation by subjugated peoples Despite their starring role in Roman imagery the populations of Rome s provinces continuously reinterpreted and reimagined Roman images of power to navigate their membership in the new imperial community and in doing so contributed to the creation of a universal visual language that continues to shape how Rome is understood

Archaeology and the Homeric Epic Susan Sherratt,John Bennet,2016-11-30 The relationship between the Homeric epics and archaeology has long suffered mixed fortunes swinging between fundamentalist attempts to use archaeology in order to demonstrate the essential historicity of the epics and their background and outright rejection of the idea that archaeology is capable of contributing anything at all to our understanding and appreciation of the epics Archaeology and the Homeric Epic concentrates less on historicity in favor of exploring a variety of other perhaps sometimes more oblique ways in which we can use a multidisciplinary approach archaeology philology anthropology and social history to help offer insights into the epics the contexts of their possibly prolonged creation aspects of their prehistory and what they may have stood for at various times in their long oral and written history The effects of the Homeric epics on the history and popular reception of archaeology especially in the particular context of modern Germany is also a theme that is explored here Contributors explore a variety of issues including the relationships between visual and verbal imagery the social contexts of epic or sub epic creation or re creation the roles of bards and their relationships to different types of patrons and audiences the construction and uses of history as traceable through both epic and archaeology and the relationship between prehistoric oral and historical recorded in writing periods Throughout the emphasis is on context and its relevance to the creation transmission re creation and manipulation of epic in the present or near present as well as in the ancient Greek past

Approaching Monumentality in Archaeology James F. Osborne,2014-10-24 Interdisciplinary study of monumental art and architecture in human history Monumentality is a human phenomenon that has occurred in nearly all times and places Because of its ubiquity monumentality is something that has been studied by a large number of disciplines and individuals Approaching Monumentality in Archaeology explores the phenomenon of monumental art and architecture from humankind's most ancient past to recent history and does so using an interdisciplinary approach that incorporates the research of anthropological archaeologists, art historians, classicists, and sociologists working in a wide variety of historical and cultural contexts. The volume seeks to define what is meant by the terms monument and monumentality and to understand the social and political significance of monument building as it has manifested around the world. By advocating for a relational approach to the topic that seeks to find monumentality in the ongoing relationship between object and person, this book offers the opportunity to begin the process of uniting these varied interests into a unified discourse.
