Tyner,2016-12-05 From the late eighteenth century until about 1840 schoolgirls in the British Isles and the United States created embroidered map samplers and even silk globes Hundreds of British maps were made and although American examples are more rare they form a significant collection of artefacts Descriptions of these samplers stated that they were designed to teach needlework and geography The focus of this book is not on stitches and techniques used in drafting the maps but rather why they were developed how they diffused from the British Isles to the United States and why they were made for such a brief time The events of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries stimulated an explosion of interest in geography The American and French Revolutions the wars between France and England the War of 1812 Captain Cook's voyages and the explorations of Lewis and Clark made the study of places exciting and important Geography was the first science taught to girls in school This period also coincided with major changes in educational theories and practices especially for girls and this book uses needlework maps and globes to chart a broader discussion of women's geographic education In this light map samplers and embroidered globes represent a transition in women's education from accomplishments in the eighteenth century to challenging geographic education and conventional map drawing in schools and academies of the second half of the nineteenth century There has been little serious study of these maps by cartographers and moreover historians of cartography have largely neglected the role of women in mapping Children's maps have not been studied although they might have much to offer about geographical teaching and perceptions of a period and map samplers have been dismissed because they are the work of schoolgirls Needlework historians likewise have not done in depth studies of map samplers until recently Stitching the World is an interdisciplinary work drawing on cartography needlework and material culture This book for the first time provides a critical analysis of these artefacts showing that they offer significant insights into both eighteenth and nineteenth century geographic thought and cartography in the USA and the UK and into the development of female education Marking Time Edward Town, Angela McShane, 2020-11-24 An engaging encyclopedic account of the material world of early modern Britain as told through a unique collection of dated objects The period from 1500 to 1800 in England was one of extraordinary social transformations many having to do with the way time itself was understood measured and recorded Through a focused exploration of an extensive private collection of fine and decorative artworks this beautifully designed volume explores that theme and the variety of ways that individual notions of time and mortality shifted The feature uniting these more than 450 varied objects is that each one bears a specific date which marks a significant moment for reasons personal or professional religious or secular private or public From paintings to porringers teapots to tape measures the objects and the stories they tell offer a vivid sense of the lived experience of time while providing a sweeping survey of the material world of early modern Britain Gender and Women's Leadership Karen O'Connor, 2010-08-18 This work within The SAGE Reference Series on Leadership provides undergraduate students with an authoritative reference resource on leadership issues specific to women and gender Although covering historical and contemporary barriers to women's leadership and issues of gender bias and discrimination this two volume set focuses as well on positive aspects and opportunities for leadership in various domains and is centered on the 101 most important topics issues questions and debates specific to women and gender Entries provide students with more detailed information and depth of discussion than typically found in an encyclopedia entry but lack the jargon detail and density of a journal article Key Features Includes contributions from a variety of renowned experts Focuses on women and public leadership in the American context women s global leadership women as leaders in the business sector the nonprofit and social service sector religion academia public policy advocacy the media sports and the arts Addresses both the history of leadership within the realm of women and gender with examples from the lives of pivotal figures and the institutional settings and processes that lead to both opportunities and constraints unique to that realm Offers an approachable clear writing style directed at student researchers Features more depth than encyclopedia entries with most chapters ranging between 6 000 and 8 000 words while avoiding the jargon and density often found in journal articles or research handbooks Provides a list of further readings and references after each entry as well as a detailed index and an online version of the work to maximize accessibility for today s student audience
