satirical essay written and published anonymously by Jonathan Swift in 1729 The essay suggests that the impoverished Irish might ease their economic troubles by selling their children as food for rich gentlemen and ladies This satirical hyperbole mocked heartless attitudes towards the poor as well as British policy toward the Irish in general The primary target of Swift's satire was the rationalism of modern economics and the growth of rationalistic modes of thinking in modern life at the expense of more traditional human values In English writing the phrase a modest proposal is now conventionally an allusion to this style of straight faced satire This essay is widely held to be one of the greatest examples of sustained irony in the history of the English language Much of its shock value derives from the fact that the first portion of the essay describes the plight of starving beggars in Ireland so that the reader is unprepared for the surprise of Swift's solution when he states A young healthy child well nursed is at a year old a most delicious nourishing and wholesome food whether stewed roasted baked or boiled and I make no doubt that it will equally serve in a fricassee or a ragout Swift goes to great lengths to support his argument including a list of possible preparation styles for the children and calculations showing the financial benefits of his suggestion He uses methods of argument throughout his essay which lampoon the then influential William Petty and the social engineering popular among followers of Francis Bacon A Modest Proposal in Plain and Simple English (Translated)
