Army Doctrine Publication Adp 1-01 Doctrine Primer September 2014 United States Government, US Army, 2014-09-27 ADP 1-01 guides Army professionals both Soldiers and Army civilians in their understanding of the entire body of professional knowledge and beliefs that shape the art and science of their profession It addresses what doctrine is why it is important and which major ideas underlie it The publication also discusses the most important taxonomies and terms used in the conduct of operations and the way they fit together as a single coherent whole The principal audience for the ADP 1-01 is all members of the Army Profession Commanders staffs and subordinates ensure that their decisions and actions comply with applicable United States international and in some cases host nation laws and regulations Doctrine is dynamic and changing based on lessons learned in current operations and training adaptive enemies and changes in force structure technology and social values This publication provides the basic information necessary to understand Army doctrine and the ways it changes It clarifies why various constructs exist and how they all fit together It is a guide for professionals about the language of the profession Starting with Baron von Steuben's Regulations for the Order and Discipline of the Troops of the United States doctrine in various forms has guided the Army through peacetime and war Lessons learned from world wars and other operations shaped and codified how Army forces operated Army forces refers to Army organizations whose role is to conduct operations in the field The Army refers to the Army as an institution In the early 1900s Army doctrine consisted of fewer than 40 field service regulations and drill manuals Over time doctrine grew to over 500 field manuals Although they provided tactics and procedures these publications lacked a clear hierarchy that served to both categorize and prioritize information Leaders sometimes struggled to determine what was truly important for all professionals and what was important only to a branch or functional area Additionally as doctrine evolved it saw a prolific growth of terms and expressions used This growth sometimes obscured the relationship of terms and expressions such that Soldiers and their leaders did not clearly understand them In 2011 the Army instituted Doctrine 2015 to bring clarity to doctrine Doctrine 2015 restructures and reformats information It identifies and distills overarching doctrine into Army doctrine publications known as ADPs and Army doctrine reference publications known as ADRPs while parsing details into field manuals known as FMs and Army techniques publications known as ATPs each publication type targets a more narrowly focused topic providing a clear hierarchy and reducing the number of publications The need to quickly transition to Doctrine 2015 did not afford time for deeply examining some underlying issues The Army repackaged existing doctrine emphasizing important information while deferring the larger question of why the information was important to Army forces Soldiers and leaders must understand what Army doctrine is what its purpose is how it is organized and why the information in doctrine is important The precursor to this understanding is a definitive text on the why of Army doctrine a doctrine primer The doctrine primer becomes the standard for evaluating future doctrine allowing the Army to discipline the establishment of terms and the categorization of operational knowledge Chapter 1 first looks at what doctrine is and why it is important Chapter 2 examines the doctrine landscape the structure of doctrine types of doctrine the relationship of doctrine to concepts and lessons learned and reasons for doctrine changes Chapter 3 looks at the foundations of doctrine Chapter 4 examines the terms and taxonomies of current doctrine Finally chapter 5 examines how the taxonomies work together to facilitate the conduct of operations Doctrine Primer U. See FM 27-10 Army Doctrine Reference Publication ADRP 1 the Army Profession June 2013 United States Government US Army, 2013-06-19 Army Doctrine Reference Publication ADRP 1 augments Chapter 2 of Army Doctrine Publication ADP 1 The Army. This ADRP defines and describes the Army Profession and the Army Ethic. It expands the discussion on the Army Profession's dual character as a military department of the United States Government and more importantly, a military profession. It identifies two mutually supportive communities of practice of the profession: the Profession of Arms Regular Army, Army National Guard, and Army Reserve forces, and the Army Civilian Corps. It establishes the five essential characteristics that legitimize the Army as a profession: trust, military expertise, honorable service, esprit de corps, and stewardship of the profession. This ADRP defines membership and certification of Army professionals in competence, character, and commitment. It describes Army culture, describes the Army Ethic, and lays the groundwork for developing the moral identity of the Army Profession and its professionals. This publication provides the foundation for Army training and education system curricula on the Army Profession, the Army Ethic, and character development of Army professionals. The principal audience for ADRP 1 is all members of the Army Profession. Trainers and educators throughout the Army will also use this publication. All photographs in this publication are from Department of Defense photographic archives available online at DefenseImagery.mil and associated Army Web pages. ADRP 1 applies to the Active Army, Army National Guard, ARNG, Army National Guard of the United States, ARNGUS, United States Army Reserve, USAR, and Army Civilians, unless otherwise stated. Commanders, staffs, and subordinates ensure their decisions and actions comply with applicable United States, international, and in some cases, host nation laws and regulations. Commanders at all levels ensure their Soldiers operate in accordance with the law of war and the rules of engagement. See Field Manual 27-10. Terms for which ADRP 1 is the proponent publication are marked with an asterisk in the glossary. Definitions for which ADRP 1 is the proponent publication are boldfaced in the text. The proponent of ADRP 1 is the United States Army Combined Arms Center.
