Resurrecting the Black Body Tonia Sutherland, 2023-10-17 In Resurrecting the Black Body Tonia Sutherland examines the consequences of digitally raising the dead Attending to the violent deaths of Black Americans and the records that document them from slavery through the present Sutherland explores media evidence digital acts of remembering and the rights and desires of humans to be forgotten From the popular image of Gordon also known as Whipped Peter photographs of the lynching of Jesse Washington and the video of George Floyd s murder to DNA holograms and posthumous communication Sutherland draws on critical archival digital and cultural studies to make legible Black bodies and lives forever captured in cycles of memorialization and commodification If the Black digital afterlife is rooted in historical bigotry and inspires new forms of racialized aggression Resurrecting the Black Body asks what other visions of life and remembrance are possible illuminating the unique ways that Black cultures have fought against the silence and erasure of oblivion

Nonbinary Gender Identities Charlie McNabb,2017-12-08 Nonbinary gender identities are those that fall outside the traditional binary of man and woman These include genderfluid androgynous genderqueer and a multitude of other identity terms some of which overlap Although there have always been people who identify outside the gender binary only recently have they gained popular media attention Despite some visibility however nonbinary gender identities are poorly understood by the general public It is critically important for gender minorities to find themselves in the media that they consume Just as important is the need for those outside the minority community to understand and appreciate them Nonbinary gender identities are represented in books and other media but these resources prove difficult to locate as classification vocabulary doesn t evolve as quickly as community language Reference sources identified include archives and special collections theses and dissertations key journals and related organizations and associations This timely resource the first reference on nonbinary gender identities offers an accessible entry into researching this topic Written by a nonbinary scholar and librarian this guide includes valuable appendixes that will aid every researcher and writer a glossary of the rich vocabulary emerging from nonbinary communities a guide to pronoun usage a primer on sex sexuality and gender and Library of Congress Classification information

New Paths to Public Histories Margot Finn,Kate Smith,2015-09-17 New Paths to Public Histories challenges readers to consider historical research as a collaborative pursuit enacted across a range of individuals from different backgrounds and institutions It argues that research communities can benefit from recognizing and strengthening the ways in which they work with others

Processing the Past Francis X. Blouin Jr.,William G. Rosenberg,2012-12-18 Processing the Past explores the dramatic changes taking place in historical understanding and archival management and hence the relations between historians and archivists Written by an archivist and a historian it shows how these changes have been brought on by new historical thinking new conceptions of archives changing notions of historical authority modifications in archival practices and new information technologies The book takes an archival turn by situating archives as subjects rather than places of study and examining the increasingly problematic relationships between historical and archival work By showing how nineteenth and early twentieth century historians and archivists in Europe and North America came to occupy the same conceptual and methodological space the book sets the background to these changes In the past authoritative history was based on authoritative archives and mutual understandings of scientific research These connections changed as historians began to ask questions not easily answered by traditional documentation and archivists began to confront an unmanageable increase in the amount of material they processed and the challenges of new electronic technologies. The authors contend that historians and archivists have divided into two entirely separate professions with distinct conceptual frameworks, training and purposes as well as different understandings of the authorities that govern their work. Processing the Past moves toward bridging this divide by speaking in one voice to these very different audiences. Blouin and Rosenberg conclude by raising the worrisome question of what future historical archives might be like if historical scholars and archivists no longer understand each other and indeed whether their now different notions of what is archival and historical will ever again be joined.

Record Making and Record Keeping in Early Societies provides a concise and up to date survey of early record making and record keeping practices across the world. It investigates the ways in which human activities have been recorded in different settings using different methods and technologies. Based on an in depth analysis of literature from a wide range of disciplines including prehistory, archaeology, Assyriology, Egyptology and Chinese and Mesoamerican studies, the book reflects the latest and most relevant historical scholarship. Drawing upon the author's experience as a practitioner and scholar of records and archives and his extensive knowledge of archival theory and practice, the book embeds its account of the beginnings of recording practices in a conceptual framework largely derived from archival science. Unique both in its breadth of coverage and in its distinctive perspective on early record making and record keeping, the book provides the only updated and synoptic overview of early recording practices available worldwide. Record Making and Record Keeping in Early Societies will be of interest to academics, researchers and students engaged in the study of archival science, archival history and the early history of human culture. The book will also appeal to practitioners of archives and records management interested in learning more about the origins of their profession.

Currents of Archival Thinking Heather MacNeil, Terry Eastwood, 2017-01-09

With new technologies and additional goals driving their institutions, archives are changing drastically. This book shows how the foundations of archival practice can be brought forward to adapt to new environments while adhering to the key principles of preservation and access. Archives of all types are experiencing a resurgence, evolving to meet new environments, digital and physical, and new priorities. To meet those changes, professional archivist education programs, now one of the more active segments of LIS schools, are proliferating as well. This book identifies core archival theories and approaches and how those interact with major issues and trends in the field. The essays explore the progression of archival thinking today, discussing the nature of archives in light of present day roles for archivists and archival institutions in the preservation of documentary heritage. Examining new conceptualizations and emerging frameworks through the lenses of core archival practice and theory, the book covers core foundational topics such as the nature of archives, the ruling concept of provenance and the principal functions of archivists, discussing each in the context of current and future environments and priorities. Several new essays on topics of central importance not treated in the first edition are included such as digital preservation and the influence of new technologies on institutional programs that facilitate archival access advocacy and outreach the changing legal context of archives and archival work and the archival collections of private persons and organizations Readers will also learn how communities of various kinds intersect with the archival mission and how other disciplines perspectives on archives can open new avenues
