Practices Textual Itineraries Production:

Compiling Texts in Eighteenth-Century Britain Rebeca Araya Acosta, 2024-08-23 This book argues that the act of compiling texts together into collections in the eighteenth century is politically and epistemologically significant Focusing on the reception of Scottish Enlightenment ideas and ranging across an Edinburgh print shop an excluded religious community in the North of England and the story worlds of novelists and poets the study reveals compilation to be a politically resistant activity it challenged centralizing and homogenizing tendencies within the growing British empire in the latter half of the eighteenth century and actively built counternarratives Rebeca Araya Acosta offers a fresh view of eighteenth century literary transaction and shows how practices of compilation in the period were more diversified and had a far greater impact on readers than their modern descendants

Textual Practice Terence Hawkes, 2005-07-20 First published in 1990 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company

Practices of Ephemera in Early Modern England Callan Davies, Hannah Lilley, Catherine Richardson, 2023-02-03 This collection is the first to historicise the term ephemera and its meanings for early modern England and considers its relationship to time matter and place It asks how do we conceive of ephemera in a period before it was routinely employed from the eighteenth century to describe ostensibly disposable print In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries when objects and texts were rapidly proliferating the term began to acquire its modern association with transitoriness But contributors to this volume show how ephemera was also integrally related to wider social and cultural ecosystems Chapters explore those ecosystems and think about the papers and artefacts that shaped homes streets and cities or towns and their attendant preservation loss or transformation The studies here therefore look beyond static records to think about moments of process and transmutation and accordingly get closer to early modern experiences identities and practices

Writing History from the Margins Claire Parfait, Hélène Le Dantec-Lowry, Claire Bourhis-Mariotti, 2016-09-13 With contributions from leading American and European scholars this collection of original essays surveys the actors and the modes of writing history from the margins of society focusing specifically on African Americans Nearly 100 years after The Journal of Negro History was founded this book assesses the legacy of the African American historians mostly amateur historians initially who wrote the history of their community between the 1830s and World War II Subsequently the growth of the civil rights movement further changed historical paradigms and the place of African Americans and that of black writers in publishing and in the historical profession Through slavery and segregation self educated and formally educated Blacks wrote works of history often in order to inscribe African Americans within the main historical narrative of the nation with a two fold objective to make African Americans proud of their past and to enable them to fight against white prejudice Over the past decade historians have turned to the study of these pioneers but a number of issues remain to be considered This anthology will contribute to answering several key questions concerning who published these books and how were they distributed read and received Little has been written concerning what they reveal about the construction of professional history in the nineteenth century when examined in relation to other writings by Euro Americans working in an academic setting or as independent researchers Entangled Itineraries Pamela H. Production in Early Modern England and France is a comparative study of the production and role of maps charts and atlases in early modern England and France with a particular focus on Paris the cartographic center of production from the late seventeenth century to the late eighteenth century and London which began to emerge in the late eighteenth century to eclipse the once favored Bourbon center The themes that carry through the work address the role of government in map and chart making In France in particular it is the importance of the centralized government and its support for geographic works and their makers through a broad and deep institutional infrastructure Prior to the late eighteenth century in England there was no central controlling agency or institution for map chart or atlas production and any official power was imposed through the market rather than through the establishment of institutions There was no centralized support for the cartographic enterprise and any effort by the crown was often challenged by the power of Parliament which saw little value in fostering or supporting scholar geographers or a national survey This book begins with an investigation of the imagery of power on map and atlas frontispieces from the late sixteenth century to the seventeenth century In the succeeding chapters the focus moves from county and regional mapping efforts in England and France to the paper wars over encroachment in their respective colonial interests The final study looks at charting efforts and highlights the role of government support and the commercial trade in the development of maritime charts not only for the home waters of the English Channel but the distant and dangerous seas of the East Indies
