Atlas of the European Novel Franco Moretti, 1999-09-17 Mapping the often surprising relationship between literature and geography Literary Cartographies Robert T. Tally Jr., 2016-04-30 Exploring narrative mapping in a wide range of literary works ranging from medieval romance to postmodern science fiction this volume argues for the significance of spatiality in comparative literary studies Contributors demonstrate how a variety of narratives represent the changing social spaces of their world Serial Revolutions 1848 Clare Pettitt, 2022 Shows how a series of revolutions that erupted across Europe in the mid to late 1840s were crucial to the creation of modern ideas of constitutional democracy citizenship and human rights William Blake and the Cartographic Imagination Caroline Anjali Ritchie, 2025-02-24 This book contributes to current discussions about the meaning history and theorisation of maps The monograph focuses on William Blake 1757 1827 whose astute critical angle on cartography invites us to think in a new light about mapping in the eighteenth century commonly regarded as a key phase within the history of European cartography Ritchie positions Blake as a participant in a vibrant mesh of cartographic practices seeking out his antecedents peers interlocutors and followers She characterises Blake's participation in cartographic culture as both energetic and uneasy In addition the book traces Blake's legacy as a point of contact for London based psychogeographical writers and small press publishers seeking to rethink the nature of maps and mapping in recent years and up to the present day Through its exploration of Blake's poetry art and legacy this book aims to pluralise and enrich conceptions of cartography from the eighteenth century to the present

Space and Narrative in the Nineteenth-Century British Historical Novel Tom Bragg, 2016-03-31 Demonstrating that nineteenth century historical novelists played their rational trustworthy narrators against shifting and untrustworthy depictions of space and place Tom Bragg argues that the result was a flexible form of fiction that could be modified to reflect both the different historical visions of the authors and the changing aesthetic tastes of the reader Bragg focuses on Scott William Harrison Ainsworth and Edward Bulwer Lytton identifying links between spatial representation and the historical novel's multi generic rendering of history and narrative Even though their understanding of history and historical process could not be more different all writers employed space and place to mirror narrative stimulate discussion interrogate historical inquiry or otherwise comment beyond the rational factual narrator's point of view Bragg also traces how landscape depictions in all three authors works inculcated heroic masculine values to show how a dominating theme of the genre endures even through widely differing versions of the form In taking historical novels beyond the localized questions of political and regional context Bragg reveals the genre's relevance to general discussions about the novel and its development Nineteenth century readers of the novel understood historical fiction to be epic and serious moral and healthful patriotic but also universal Space and Narrative in the Nineteenth Century British Historical Novel takes this readership at its word and acknowledges the complexity and diversity of the form by examining one of its few continuous features a flexibly
