data are regulated differently than content communications data. Technological developments challenge these legal categorisations on at least three fronts. First the lines between the categories are becoming harder to draw and more fluid. Second working with various categories of data works well when the category a datum or dataset falls into is relatively stable. However this is less and less so. Third scholars increasingly question the rationale behind the various legal categorisations. This book assesses to what extent either of these strategies is feasible and to what extent alternative approaches could be developed by combining insights from three fields: technology, practice and law.
