A New History of War Reporting Kevin Williams, 2019-12-23 This book takes a fresh look at the history of war reporting to understand how new technology new ways of waging war and new media conditions are changing the role and work of today's war correspondent Focussing on the mechanics of war reporting and the logistical and institutional pressures on correspondents the book further examines the role of war propaganda accreditation and news management in shaping the evolution of the specialism Previously neglected conflicts and correspondents are reclaimed and wars considered as key moments in the history of war reporting such as the Crimean War 1854-56 and the Great War 1914-18 are re-evaluated The use of objectivity as the yardstick by which to assess the performance of war correspondents is questioned The emphasis is instead placed on war as a messy business which confronts reporters and photographers with conditions that challenge the norms of professional practice References to the demise of the war correspondent have accompanied the growth of the specialism since the days of William Howard Russell the so-called father of war reporting This highlights the fragile nature of this sub-genre of journalism and emphasises that continuity as much as change characterises the work of the war correspondent A thematically organised historically rich introduction this book is ideal for students of journalism media and communication
