Greening Industries in Newly Industrializing Economies Peter Ho, 2014-02-25 First published in 2006 Over the past decades the world has witnessed the profound transformation of China Vietnam Taiwan and Singapore from impoverished developing regions into strong and internationally competitive economies Also dubbed Newly Industrializing Economies NIEs it has become obvious that their rapid development has come at a price Contrary to their economic successes these NIEs have been much less successful in terms of ecological sustainability and environmental protection A critical question in this respect is how can the state effect the greening of industries and business without inhibiting economic growth Some scholars have argued that NIEs are situated at an unique juncture they have an unparalleled opportunity to find different development paths and in so doing to provide models that other countries could follow With the right policy mix they might achieve rapid economic development while avoiding environmental degradation on the scale of that created by the United States Europe a Union member countries and other earlier industrialized nations Doing it right the first time by installing clean technologies and developing the capacity and the governance style to enforce environmental regulations could lead to leapfrogging the development process and building industrial economies that are both competitive and more sustainable than those economies with an older industrial base This edited volume examines these issues through case studies from China Vietnam Taiwan and Singapore It is argued that the NIEs first and second generations alike are not truly situated in a more favourable position that allows leapfrogging in the greening of industries This book brings together a team of leading experts in their field ranging from development studies sociology political studies and economics It will be of interest to a wide readership of students and professionals concerned with development in contemporary Asia with particular reference to environmental studies industrial pollution control social movements and developmental state theory

Sleeboom-Faulkner,2012-11-12 Genomics in Asia focuses on issues dealing with the development and application of molecular biology and bioengineering technologies in Asian societies and cultures The workshop on which this book is based aimed to gain an insight into bioethical issues with relation to the dynamics of Asian societies cultures and religions It was to generate debate on Asian Genomics and create a basis for comparative research into the relationship between the development and application of modern genetics cultural values and local interests in Asian societies The papers first of all reflect a great variety of bioethical views discussed from the angle of different disciplinary and cultural backgrounds creating a basis on which a further comparison between different local knowledge systems in relation to genomic practices will be feasible This book provides insights on research into the social political and ethical aspects of genomics and reflects the bioethical experiences of researchers from Japan China the Philippines Thailand Taiwan Pakistan India and Malaysia The

Muslims In Australia Nahid Kabir,2013-01-11 Muslims in Australia investigates the basis of Australian society s fear of Muslims by tracing their history since the Afghan settlement in 1860 The author investigates how events such as September 11 and Bali terrorist attacks reinforce suspicion and fear giving an insight into what it means to be a Muslim in contemporary Australia and how the actions of militant Islamic groups have impacted upon Muslims in general in Western society

The Paradox of Myanmar's Regime Change Roger Huang,2020-04-06 This book analyzes Myanmar s contemporary political history arguing that Myanmar s so called democratization has always been a calculated regime transition planned by the military with every intention that the military to remain the key permanent political actor in Myanmar s political regime Using the period since Myanmar s regime change in 2011 as an extended case study this book offers an original theory of regime transition The author argues that Myanmar s ongoing regime transition has not diverged from its authoritarian military roots and explains how the military has long planned its voluntary partial withdrawal from direct politics Therefore Myanmar s disciplined democracy contains features of democratic politics but at its core remains authoritarian Providing an original contribution to the theoretical literature on regime change by developing a theory of trial and error regime transition the book engages with and challenges the popular democratization theory by arguing that this theory does not sufficiently explain hybrid regimes or authoritarian durability Additionally the book adds to an alternative understanding of how the regime transition was initiated by examining the historical evolution of Myanmar s post colonial regime and offers a fresh perspective on contemporary political developments in Myanmar An important contribution to the study of authoritarian durability and the dynamics of regime change in Southeast Asia this book will be of interest to academic researchers of comparative politics international relations and Southeast Asian studies
