

An abstract geometric painting by Piet Mondrian. The composition is dominated by a large, vibrant red square in the center. This central square is framed by a complex arrangement of black and white rectangular blocks and thin black lines. The black elements include a horizontal bar at the top, vertical bars on the sides, and various smaller rectangular shapes that create a sense of depth and structure. The white background provides a stark contrast to the red and black, emphasizing the geometric forms. The overall effect is one of balanced asymmetry and primary color contrast.
