Performing the Apocalypse

Garland Autry, 2025-10-30 People love to tell stories In the ancient world most people interacted with these stories primarily through the spoken word as opposed to the printed text The book of Revelation is one such story Not only is the narrative Revelation intended to be read aloud Rev 1 3 but the written text itself betrays a number of features characteristic of oral storytelling The aim of this monograph is to analyze John s Apocalypse with the listening audience in mind in order to validate that indeed the text was composed as a text for performance An eclectic methodology combining tools from oral biblical criticism discourse analysis and biblical performance criticism is utilized to explore three representative sections of Revelation working from sounds and syllables to the oral patterns that structure the book itself This book contributes to scholarship proposing that Revelation must be re heard just as it was by the original recipients Since syllables sounds cola and periods are often ignored in current scholarship this monograph aims to help scholars re hear these neglected features The many endless proposals regarding the macrostructure of Revelation frequently overlook the way in which material was arranged for oral performance and this book serves as a corrective

A Grammar of Rapa Nui Paulus Kieviet, This book is a comprehensive description of the grammar of Rapa Nui the Polynesian language spoken on Easter Island After an introductory chapter the grammar deals with phonology word classes the noun phrase possession the verb phrase verbal and nonverbal clauses mood and negation and clause combinations The phonology of Rapa Nui reveals certain issues of typological interest such as the existence of strict conditions on the phonological shape of words word final devoicing and reduplication patterns motivated by metrical constraints For Polynesian languages the distinction between nouns and verbs in the lexicon has often been denied in this grammar it is argued that this distinction is needed for Rapa Nui Rapa Nui has sometimes been characterised as an ergative language this grammar shows that it is unambiguously accusative Subject and object marking depend on an interplay of syntactic semantic and pragmatic factors Other distinctive features of the language include the existence of a neutral aspect marker a serial verb construction the emergence of copula verbs a possessive relative construction and a tendency to maximise the use of the nominal domain Rapa Nui s relationship to the other Polynesian languages is a recurring theme in this grammar the relationship to Tahitian which has profoundly influenced Rapa Nui especially deserves attention The grammar is supplemented with a number of interlinear texts two maps and a subject index

A Grammar of Makary Kotoko Sean Allison, 2020-06-15 In A Grammar of Makary Kotoko Sean Allison provides a thorough description and analysis of Makary Kotoko a Central Chadic language of Cameroon framing the discussion within R M W Dixon s 2010a 2010b 2012 Basic Linguistic Theory Working with an extensive corpus of recorded texts supplemented by interactions with native speakers of the language the author provides the first full grammar of a Kotoko language The detailed analysis of the phonology morphology syntax and discourse features of Makary Kotoko is from a functional typological perspective Being based on a large number of oral texts the analysis provides an example rich description showing the range of variation of the constructions presented while giving insights into Kotoko culture

Contextual Frames of Reference in Translation Ernst Wendland, 2014-04-08 Bible translation theory and practice rightly tend to focus on the actual text of Scripture But many diverse yet interrelated contextual factors also play an important part in the implementation of a successful translation program The aim of this coursebook is to explore in varying degrees of detail a wide range of these crucial situational variables and potential influences using a multidisciplinary approach to the task Thus in order to expand and enrich the field of vision a progressive study of this complex process of intercultural interlinguistic communication is carried out according to a set of overlapping sociocultural organizational and situational cognitive orientations These contextual factors provide a broader frame of reference for analyzing interpreting and communicating the original Scriptures in a completely new contemporary setting of transmission and reception The three dimensions are then applied in a practical way to explore the dramatic throne room vision of the Apostle John Revelation 4 5 with reference to both the original Greek text and also a modern dynamic translation in Chewa a southeastern Bantu language of Africa A variety of exercises and assignments to stimulate critical and creative reflection as well as to illustrate the theoretical development of Contextual Frames of Reference is provided every step of the way Not only is translation per se discussed but the teaching and evaluation of translated texts and versions are also considered from several points of view in the final three chapters An Appendix offers a foundational essay by Professor Lourens de Vries on the subject of primary orality and the influence of this vital factor in the crosscultural communication of the Bible
