The Future of Training in Psychotherapy and Counselling John Rowan, 2014-02-25 The Future of Training in Psychotherapy and Counselling presents a revealing and stimulating account of the current state of training that demonstrates how training will have to adapt if it is to successfully meet the needs and challenges of the future In an attempt to look afresh at the whole question of training John Rowan proposes that there are three ways of doing therapy and any examination of training has to consider each of these the instrumental where the main emphasis is on the treating the client or patient the authentic way where the main emphasis is on meeting the client or patient the transpersonal way where main emphasis is on linking with the client in a more personal way Each approach makes different assumptions about the self about the relationship and about the level of consciousness involved in doing therapy By challenging the basic precepts of traditional training John Rowan encourages the reader to reconsider subjects including the difference between counselling and psychotherapy culture and ethics the origins of disturbance in clients and child development The Future of Training in Psychotherapy and Counselling provides a much needed new perspective that will compel all psychotherapists and counsellors to take a closer look at training in the field

Bullying is an increasing problem in the workplace. It is estimated that five million workers are bullied each year in the UK and that one in four employees is aware of colleagues being bullied. Bullying creates significant health problems for employees and despite this there is a conspicuous absence of published material on why these behaviors occur. Counselling for Post-traumatic Stress Disorder Michael J Scott, Stephen G Stradling, 2006-07-11. Counselling for Post traumatic Stress Disorder Third Edition addresses the specifics of counselling clients who have suffered major trauma whether recently or in the past and includes 18 detailed case examples together with transcripts of sessions. The authors' cognitive contextual approach translates the psychobiology of trauma responses into clinically useful analogies and simple drawings that guide the therapist and client. The book is unique in covering the diagnosis and treatment of the full spectrum of post traumatic states. In this fully updated Third Edition the needs of special populations: children, adolescents, refugees and those in pain are also addressed. Additional material includes a new PTSD screening inventory and a counselling competence scale. Counselling for Post traumatic Stress Disorder Third Edition is an invaluable comprehensive aid for both the experienced and novice therapist working with trauma victims. Michael J Scott is a Consultant Psychologist and External Examiner for the MSc Cognitive and Behavioural Psychotherapies Programme at the University of Chester. Stephen G Stradling is Professor of Transport Psychology at Napier University.
