

GENERAL INFORMATION

Always consult an authorized installer, requiring only chimney connections and protection for combustible fuels. These instructions show combustion installation requirements and include supplemental instructions for remote fuel installation. Read these instructions and follow procedure drawings. The appliance is manufactured with a 2" (50.8 mm) vent or a 2" (50.8 mm) (model 1400A) diameter flue collar. Use only the same diameter chimney connector and chimney (it is a listed metal chimney system as the flue collar on the stove). Increasing or decreasing the chimney diameter can affect draft and lower your performance of the appliance. See page 19 for more information regarding flue draft. Do not connect this unit to a chimney that carries another appliance. Obtain a listing card prior to installing stove. Consult local building or fire officials about codes and any additional inspection requirements in your area.

WARNING-FAILURE TO INSTALL THIS APPLIANCE PROPERLY MAY CAUSE A SERIOUS HOUSE FIRE

We recommend that you take your installation as given using exact measurements for clearance and fast protection safety, always reading this appliance. If an existing chimney is not vertical, position the stove to allow the passage of satisfactory flue draft through the chimney and roof. Never set unit flanges or offset, have a qualified building inspector review your gas venting installation.

UL 613 & Recognition No. 1000, I.F.T. Recognition does not apply to mobile home installation.

MINIMUM CLEARANCES TO COMBUSTIBLES

The clearance listed below in Table 1 and 2 are MINIMUM values only. Maintain the clearance to both the stove and the chimney connector. The minimum distance is correct if the flue clearance is determined. For example, if the stove is set as indicated in one of the tables but the clearance is too close, move the stove until the correct clearance to the connector is achieved. The stove may be installed only with the clearance as shown below, in the situations provided. Do not combine clearances from one type of installation with another one to achieve closer clearances.

CLEARANCES USING SINGLE WALL CONNECTOR (GROUPS)

Use the minimum clearance shown in Table 1 for installation with single wall connector. Single wall connector must be at least 24 gauge (0.0156 in.) or 20 gauge (0.0141 in.) thick. Single wall connector may be secured as shown in Table 1 by using one of the listed chimney connector attachment page 7 attached directly to the stove.

CLEARANCES USING LISTED CHIMNEY CONNECTOR

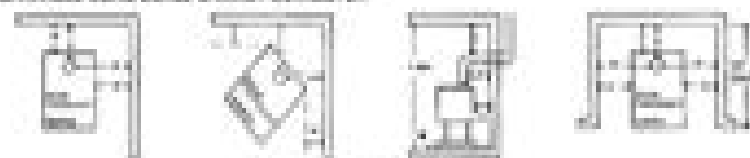

Table 2

If further reduced clearances are needed, consult requirements for construction of a protected wall from your local building authorities and their allowable reduction in the above clearances.

For through-the-wall chimney installations, floor protection must extend past the back of the stove to the rear wall. See page 5 for complete floor protection requirements.

FLOOR PROTECTION

The floor must be non-combustible or otherwise protected by a non-combustible floor protector. The floor must comply with requirements for the area directly beneath the unit. Floor protector must extend at least 18" behind (2' 0" in case of the stove door) 36" in case of 18" stove and 48" in other case and over all stove body. If a wall-mounted or other listed decorative stone floor protector may be applied using non-combustible mortar.

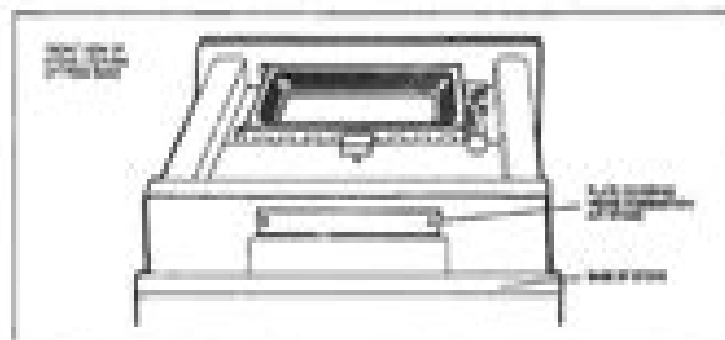

MATCHING FLOOR PROTECTORS

A specially designed floor protector is available for your stove installation. These light weight only is specially designed floor protector install easily. (Order part no. 1400A (model 1400) or no. 1400B (model 1400) from your stove dealer).

NOTE: The matching floor protector will not meet the floor protection requirements for through-the-wall chimney installation. See minimum clearance to combustibles coverage in this manual. Also provide the listing card for following table and installation instructions.

OUTSIDE COMBUSTION AIR

Outside combustion air must be used in all mobile home installations. It may also be required to achieve an adequate draft in houses that are tightly built or insulated with caulked ceilings, doors, windows, etc., or where fresh outside supply is low. If outside air is not to be used, remove the plate covering the inside air intake. (See installation drawing). It is located under the front of the stove and is removed by drilling out or breaking off the plastic cover.

OUTSIDE COMBUSTION AIR INSTALLATION

It will be necessary to cut a hole in the floor under the stove to allow the use of outside combustion air. The jacketed pipes go in first to locate the air pipe, the air intake goes on the bottom of the stove body. Locate the stove so that the air comes through the floor installation. Do not cut floor joint. The structural strength of the floor must be maintained.

FOR USE WITH FLOOR PROTECTION NO. 1400A (MODEL 1400) AND NO. 1400B (MODEL 1400)

1. Follow instructions under protection to combustibles for correct stove location.
2. Cut down on floor and from a point the stove the hole is above where stove location will be.
3. Remove plate and mark a cut out the size of the outside air duct in 1/2" inch on the 1/2" inch on model 1400 with the panel for installing the front of the stove body and connect along the middle of the line.
4. Tightly close access through the hole by drilling a small hole in the rear corners of and to be cut. Insert piping out of way through each hole so it will be hidden from the underside of floor. Check that no combustible wood and that there is no contact of heat the use of the vent opening for outside air intake.
5. Cut out the correct size for outside air.
6. Remove the stove from the hole and line it up with the panel lines started in step 3.
7. Install floor protector. Use separate instructions to protect with floor protector.
