Functions of the Skeletal System

Besides contributing to body shape and form, our bones perform several important body functions.

1. Support. Bones, the “steel girders” and “reinforced concrete” of the body, form the internal framework that supports the body and cradle its soft organs; the bones of the legs act as pillars to support the body trunk when we stand, and the rib cage supports the thoracic wall.
2. Protection. Bones protect soft body organs; for example, the fused bones of the skull provide a snug enclosure for the brain, the vertebrae surround the spinal cord, and the rib cage helps protect the vital organs of the thorax.
3. Movement. Skeletal muscles, attached to bones by tendons, use the bones as levers to move the body and its parts.
4. Storage. Fat is stored in the internal cavities of bones; bone itself serves as a storehouse for minerals, the most important of which are calcium and phosphorus; because most of the body’s calcium is deposited in the bones as calcium salts, the bones are a convenient place to get more calcium ions for the blood as they are used up.
5. Blood cell formation. Blood cell formation, or hematopoiesis, occurs within the marrow cavities of certain bones.
