

A detailed architectural sketch of a city street scene. The foreground features a perspective grid representing a paved plaza or street. On either side of the street are multi-story buildings. The buildings on the left are more complex, with some sections appearing as wireframe models, revealing internal structures like stairs and rooms. The buildings on the right are more solid, with a grid of windows. The overall style is a technical architectural drawing, likely a pen and ink sketch, with fine lines and cross-hatching for shading.
