

Buffered outputs - every dynamic input signal is conveniently available at the front panel via buffered output connections for easy connection to portable and test instrumentation.

Digital communications - the 2500/15 Communications Gateway supports Modbus, and Modbus/TCP protocols via serial (RS232, RS422, RS485) or Ethernet lines for digital communications with PLCs, DCSs, and other instrument and automation programs. Multiple gateways can be installed in a single rack for full redundancy or when multiple protocols are required.

Keypad module - accepts single- and six-event per turn signals from proximity probes and magnetic pickups. A standard rack can accommodate up to four keypad modules (two 2500/15 modules), and special modifications are available when more than four keypad signals are required.

Built-in intrinsic safety (I&S) barriers - I/O modules can be ordered with or without internally mounted I.S. barriers to decrease wiring, increase accuracy, and reduce installation costs when hazardous environments require intrinsically safe installation practices.

2500/15 Power supply - provides redundant AC/DC voltages and frequencies and can be supplied fully redundant to ensure uninterrupted performance.

Keylock security - all monitor modules are software-configurable via the 2500's Transient Data Interface Module - key lockable to prevent unauthorized tampering.

Analog communications - monitor module channels are available with analog 4-20 mA proportional outputs for process control systems and other instrumentation.

Transient Data Interface (TDI) - provides configuration interface as well as single module connection to system I software via conventional wired or wireless Ethernet networks. The 2500's advanced design ensures that simultaneous data acquisition occurs for all channels in the rack.

Multiple parameters from each channel - rapid vibration channels can provide eight individual parameters (overall, gap, 14 amplitude/phases, 14 amplitude/phases, test 14, trends), meaning a 4-channel monitor actually provides up to 32 channels of measurements. Alarms can be set on any or all 8 parameters from each channel.

Hot-swappable modules - for ease of maintenance and maximum uptime, modules can be removed and reinserted without removing rack power.

Battery modules - software-programmable a wiring logic provides unmatched flexibility. 4- and 16-channel versions available.

Industry-standard 19" rack size - provides more than twice the channel density of previous systems. Available in both 16U rack and full-height mounting versions, along with integral (standard) or external field wiring termination blocks (optional) for maximum installation flexibility.

VGA display module - the 2500/1501 module displays all 2500 machinery protection system information, including:

- System event list
- Alarm event list
- All module and channel data
- Alarm and OK status
- Nine Custom display options

Supports either the 12" or 15" Advanced VGA touch screen displays. These compact, durable displays are designed for excellent viewing quality in industrial applications. The 12" Advanced display is certified for hazardous environments.
