Beyond The Pleasure Principle:

Beyond the Pleasure Principle Sigmund Freud, 1922-11-13 Beyond the Pleasure Principle is a book by Sigmund Freud that marks a major turning point in his theoretical approach. Previously Freud attributed most human behavior to the sexual instinct Eros or libido. With this book Freud went beyond the simple pleasure principle, developing his theory of drives with the addition of the death drive, often referred to as Thanatos. The book describes humans as struggling between two opposing drives: Eros, which produces creativity, harmony, sexual connection, reproduction, and self-preservation; and Thanatos, which brings destruction, repetition, aggression, compulsion, and self-destruction. With Beyond the Pleasure Principle, Freud also introduced the question of violence and destructiveness in humans. These themes play an important role in some later writings when Freud suggested that civilization's major function is to repress the death instinct.

Sigmund Freud (1856-1939) was an Austrian neurologist and the father of psychoanalysis, a clinical method for treating psychopathology through dialogue between a patient and a psychoanalyst. In creating psychoanalysis, Freud developed therapeutic techniques such as the use of free association and discovered transference, establishing its central role in the analytic process. Freud's redefinition of sexuality to include its infantile forms led him to formulate the Oedipus complex as the central tenet of psychoanalytical theory. His analysis of dreams as wish fulfillments provided him with models for the clinical analysis of symptom formation and the mechanisms of repression, as well as for elaboration of his theory of the unconscious.

Beyond the Pleasure Principle Sigmund Freud, 2003-07-31 A collection of some of Freud's most famous essays including ON THE INTRODUCTION OF NARCISSISM, REMEMBERING, REPEATING AND WORKING THROUGH, BEYOND THE PLEASURE PRINCIPLE, THE EGO AND THE ID, and INHIBITION, SYMPTOM AND FEAR.

Beyond the Pleasure Principle Sigmund Freud, 1922 In the psychoanalytical theory of the mind, we take it for granted that the course of mental processes is automatically regulated by the pleasure principle; that is to say, we believe that any given process originates in an unpleasant state of tension and thereupon determines for itself such a path that its ultimate issue coincides with a relaxation of this tension, i.e. with avoidance of pain or with production of pleasure. We know that the pleasure principle is adjusted to a primary mode of operation on the part of the psychic apparatus and that for the preservation of the organism amid the difficulties of the external world it is at first useless and indeed extremely dangerous. Under the influence of the instinct of the ego for self-preservation it is replaced by the reality principle, which without giving up the intention of ultimately attaining pleasure yet demands and enforces the postponement of satisfaction, the renunciation of manifold possibilities of it, and the temporary endurance of pain on the long and circuitous road to pleasure. The replacement of the pleasure principle by the reality principle can account only for a small part and that not the most intense of painful experiences. Another and no less regular source of pain proceeds from the conflicts and dissociations in the psychic apparatus during the development of the ego towards a more highly coordinated organisation. The two sources of pain here indicated still do not nearly cover the majority of our painful experiences but as to the rest one may say with a fair show of reason that their presence does not impugn the supremacy of the pleasure principle Most of the pain we experience is of a perceptual order perception either of the urge of unsatisfied instincts or of something in the external world which may be painful in itself or may arouse painful anticipations in the psychic apparatus and is recognised by it as danger The reaction to these claims of impulse and these threats of danger a reaction in which the real activity of the psychic apparatus is manifested may be guided correctly by the pleasure principle or by the reality principle which modifies this It seems thus unnecessary to recognise a still more far reaching limitation of the pleasure principle and nevertheless it is precisely the investigation of the psychic reaction to external danger that may supply new material and new questions in regard to the problem here treated Book PsycINFO Database Record c 2006 APA all rights reserved
