Learning Objectives

Assigning Scientific Names Biologists have a great diversity of organisms. Biologists categorize each organism as a taxon. Biologists also use taxonomic groupings to group organisms based on their characteristics. Biologists use a classification system. This system of naming and grouping organisms is called taxonomy.

Linnaeus (1707–1778) developed a naming system, called binomial nomenclature, to classify organisms. Each species is assigned a two-part scientific name.

- The first part of the name refers to the genus, or a group of similar species.
- The second part of the name is unique to each species.

Linnaeus's Classification System Linnaeus's system of classification has seven different levels. Biologists use Linnaeus's hierarchy to identify and group species. Family, genus, species, phylum, and kingdom. Each of the ranking levels is called a taxon.

- Genus is a group of similar species, a family is a group of similar genera.
- An order is a group of similar families.
- A class is a group of similar orders.
- A phylum is a group of similar classes.
- A kingdom is a group of similar phyla.
