Tuberculosis, Leprosy and Mycobacterial Diseases of Man and Animals Harshini Mukundan,Mark Chambers,Ray Waters,Michelle Larsen,2015-09-28 Mycobacteria are bacterial pathogens which cause diseases in humans and non human animals This monograph will primarily cover the most important and widely researched groups of mycobacteria members of the Mycobacterium tuberculosis complex MTC and Mycobacterium leprae across a wide range of host species M tuberculosis and M bovis are particularly relevant with the increasing drug resistance and co infection with HIV associated with M tuberculosis and the possible cross infection of badgers and cattle associated with M bovis This book will provide a reference for researchers working in different fields creating a work which draws together information on different pathogens and by considering the diseases in a zoonotic context provides a One Health approach to these important groups of diseases

Reproductive Sciences in Animal Conservation Pierre Comizzoli, Janine L. Brown, William V. Holt, 2019-08-30 This second edition emphasizes the environmental impact on reproduction with updated chapters throughout as well as complete new chapters on species such as sharks and rays This is a wide ranging book that will be of relevance to anyone involved in species conservation and provides critical perspectives on the real utility of current and emerging reproductive sciences Understanding reproductive biology is centrally important to the way many of the world's conservation problems should be tackled Currently the extinction problem is huge with up to 30% of the world's fauna being expected to disappear in the next 50 years Nevertheless it has been estimated that the global population of animals in zoos encompasses 12 000 15 000 species and we anticipate that every effort will be made to preserve these species for as long as possible minimizing inbreeding effects and providing the best welfare standards available Even if the reproductive biology community cannot solve the global biodiversity crisis for all wild species we should do our best to maintain important captive populations Reproductive biology in this context is much more than the development of techniques for helping with too little or too much breeding While some of the relevant techniques are useful for individual species that society might target for a variety of reasons whether nationalistic cultural or practical technical developments have to be backed up by thorough biological understanding of the background behind the problems

Mammals of Africa: Volume I Jonathan Kingdon, 2014-11-20 Mammals of Africa MoA is a series of six volumes which describes in detail every currently recognized species of African land mammal. This is the first time that such extensive coverage has ever been attempted and the volumes incorporate the very latest information and detailed discussion of the morphology, distribution, biology and evolution including reference to fossil and molecular data of Africa's mammals. With more than 1 160 species and 16 18 orders, Africa has the greatest diversity and abundance of mammals in the world. The reasons for this and the mechanisms behind their evolution are given special attention in the series. Each volume follows the same format with detailed profiles of every species and higher taxa. The series includes hundreds of colour illustrations and pencil drawings by Jonathan Kingdon highlighting the morphology and behaviour of the species concerned as well as line drawings of skulls and jaws by Jonathan Kingdon and Meredith Happold. Every species also includes a detailed distribution map. Edited by Jonathan Kingdon, David Happold, Tom Butynski, Mike Hoffmann, Meredith Happold and Jan Kalina and written by more than 350 authors, all experts in their fields, Mammals of Africa is as comprehensive a compendium of current knowledge as is possible. Extensive references alert readers to more detailed information. This first volume in the series comprises eight introductory chapters covering topics such as evolution, geography and geology, biotic zones, classification, behaviour and morphology. The rest of the book is devoted to the Afrotheria, a grouping that comprises six orders and 49 species: these are the hyraxes, elephants, manatees, otters, shrews, golden moles, sengis, elephant shrews and Aardvark.
