Borchers,Stephen T. Buckland,Walter Zucchini,2013-03-09 We hope this book will make the bewildering variety of methods for estimating the abundance of animal populations more accessible to the uninitiated and more coherent to the cogniscenti We have tried to emphasize the fundamental similarity of many methods and to draw out the common threads that underlie them With the exception of Chapter 13 we restrict ourselves to closed populations those that do not change in composition over the periods being considered Open population methods are in many ways simply extensions of closed population methods and we have tried to provide the reader with a foundation on which understanding of both closed and open population methods can develop We would like to thank Miguel Bernal for providing the St Andrews example dataset used frequently in the book Miguel Bernal and Jeff Laake for commenting on drafts of the book Jeff Laake for providing Figure 10.1 NRC Research Press for allowing us to use Figures 10.2 10.3 10.4 10.5 10.6 and 10.7 the International Whaling Commission for allowing us to use Figure 12.1 Sharon Hedley for providing Figures

Farm Business Management Peter L. Nuthall, 2011 This book discusses the methods to determine optimal systems in farm business management The methods are all about problem solving as any decision situation implies choice and therefore requires a method for deciding which alternative maximizes the objectives The book is not however about carrying out the optimal plans Most of the chapters relate to quantitative methods and qualitative analysis The book has a penultimate chapter discussing a number of analytical models that are commonly used in urban business but which are less important in primary production The results of farming systems analyses can have a major impact on good decision making in any primary producing community Some of the methods might be used by farmers themselves but more likely by farm advisors and consultants and by farm management researchers interested in firstly providing farmers with guidance on optimal systems and secondly providing governments with advice on the impact of farm policy measures
