1. Describe the role of the three types of neurons in the nervous system.

The nervous system consists of three types of neurons: sensory neurons, which carry information from the body to the brain; motor neurons, which carry information from the brain to the body; and interneurons, which connect sensory and motor neurons.
2. Explain the difference between a reflex and a voluntary action.

A reflex is an involuntary, automatic response to a stimulus, while a voluntary action is a conscious, deliberate response to a stimulus.
3. Describe the structure and function of the brain.

The brain is the central organ of the nervous system, responsible for processing information and controlling the body. It is divided into three main regions: the cerebrum, which is responsible for higher-level functions such as thought and memory; the cerebellum, which is responsible for coordination and balance; and the brainstem, which controls basic life functions such as breathing and heart rate.
4. Explain the role of the spinal cord.

The spinal cord is a long, thin, tube-like structure that runs from the base of the brain down to the lower back. It is responsible for transmitting information between the brain and the rest of the body.
5. Describe the structure and function of the peripheral nervous system.

The peripheral nervous system (PNS) consists of all the neurons in the body that are not part of the central nervous system (CNS). It is responsible for carrying information from the CNS to the rest of the body.
6. Explain the role of neurotransmitters.

Neurotransmitters are chemical messengers that transmit signals from one neuron to another. They are released by the axon terminals of a neuron and bind to receptors on the dendrites of another neuron, triggering a response.
7. Describe the structure and function of the eye.

The eye is an organ that allows us to see. It consists of several parts, including the cornea, which is the clear front part of the eye; the iris, which is the colored part of the eye; the lens, which focuses light on the retina; and the retina, which is the light-sensitive part of the eye that sends signals to the brain.
8. Explain the role of the ear.

The ear is an organ that allows us to hear. It consists of several parts, including the pinna, which is the visible part of the ear; the ear canal, which leads to the eardrum; the eardrum, which vibrates in response to sound waves; and the ossicles, which are three small bones that transmit vibrations from the eardrum to the cochlea.
9. Describe the structure and function of the tongue.

The tongue is a muscular organ in the mouth that is used for tasting, swallowing, and speaking. It is covered in small bumps called papillae, which contain taste buds.
10. Explain the role of the nose.

The nose is an organ that allows us to breathe and smell. It consists of several parts, including the nostrils, which are the openings of the nose; the nasal cavity, which is the space inside the nose; and the olfactory bulb, which is the part of the brain that processes smells.
11. Describe the structure and function of the skin.

The skin is the largest organ in the body. It serves as a protective barrier against the environment and helps regulate body temperature. It is composed of three layers: the epidermis, which is the outermost layer; the dermis, which is the middle layer; and the hypodermis, which is the innermost layer.
