• Industry Overview

The auto parts stores industry includes stores / shops that retail new and used automotive parts and accessories, repair automobiles and install automotive accessories. Players in this industry can choose to operate a single store in just one location or chains of stores in several locations scattered all across the United States of America. As a matter of fact, auto stores can be found in all parts of the world as long as there are automobiles there.

IBIS World projected that the Auto Parts Stores industry is expected to grow slowly over the five years to 2016. They stated that per capita disposable income and corporate profit boosted the demand for auto parts. Furthermore, favorable car usage trends have led to growth in demand for industry products in the short term.

Nevertheless, advancements in motor vehicle technology have made it increasingly difficult for vehicle owners to repair and maintain vehicles without professional help. Going forward, the revenue generated by operators in the industry is expected to grow at the same pace as the previous period.

As the national level of per capita disposable income continues to rise, some consumers will increase their spending on maintaining and fixing their automobile hence the increase in demand for products and services from the Auto Stores industry

The Auto Parts Stores Industry is indeed a large industry and pretty much active in all the countries of the world. Statistics has it that in the United States of America alone, there are about 43,136 registered and licensed auto spare parts stores scattered all across the United States responsible for directly employing about 376,102 people and the industry rakes in a whopping sum of $66 billion annually.

The industry is projected to grow at 1.9 percent annual growth within 2011 and 2016. It is important to state that Advance Auto Parts, AutoZone Inc., Genuine Parts Company, and O'Reilly Automotive Inc. have the largest chunk of the available market share in the industry.
