Paradox and Promise: Autonomy, Foreign Language Learning and Technology

Assumptions about autonomy and technology

... educational technology demonstrates its effectiveness as a provider of learner autonomy (Owen, 1999: 296).

One obvious benefit of technology for language learning is the creation of opportunities for students to use language in authentic contexts. Such activities encourage students to notice the autonomy in the target language (Miranda, 2009a).

There are indeed bold suggestions, expressed with some certainty, that there can be no world 'out there' suggested by the promises that we have seen digital education, in danger of being blinded by its own enthusiasm?

Though published ten years apart, these two observations convey a common sentiment, reflecting the introduction of technology into a context for learning can provide opportunities for learners to exploit their capacity for independent learning and language performance beyond the constraints of their institutional learning environment. Autonomy lies at the heart of this hope although it is an elusive construct to pin down and often conflated with independence. The construct as I have interpreted it corresponds with the distinction made by Dorn and House (1999: 489):

Independence means to do for yourself, to act only on what the personal motivation and support. Autonomy, in contrast, means to act freely, with a sense of volition and choice. It is thus possible for a person to be independent and autonomous (i.e., to freely and only on self-reliance), yet to be independent and controlled (i.e., to feel forced and to only on self-reliance).

Task-Based Language Learning in a Real-World Digital Environment Paul Seedhouse, 2017-02-09 How can you use the latest digital technology to create an environment in which people can learn European languages while performing a meaningful real world task and experiencing the cultural aspect of learning to cook European dishes This book explains how to do this from A to Z covering how a real world digital environment for language learning was designed built and researched The project makes language learning motivational and fun by tapping into people's interest in both cooking and technology you can learn a language while cooking and interacting with a speaking digital kitchen The kitchens provide spoken instructions in the foreign language on how to prepare European cuisine Digital sensors are inserted in or attached to all the kitchen equipment and ingredients so the digital kitchen detects what learners are doing and gives them feedback Learners are also able to communicate with the kitchens and can ask for help via photos and videos if they don't understand any foreign language words Based on two research grants the book provides five research studies showing the learning experiences of users in five European countries The book explains the principles and procedures involved in the project enabling others to design and implement a real world digital learning environment in the same way It includes numerous photographs of the system in use and evidence of how and what 250 users actually learnt

Autonomous Language Learning with Technology Chun Lai, 2017-06-29 This book looks beyond the classroom and focuses on out of class autonomous use of technology for language learning discussing the theoretical frameworks key findings and critical issues The proliferation of digital language learning resources and tools is forcing language education into an era of unprecedented change The book will stimulate discussions on how to support language learners to construct quality autonomous technology mediated out of class learning experience outside the classroom and raise greater awareness of and research interest in this field Out of class learning constitutes an important context for human development and active engagement in out of class activities is associated with successful language development With convenient access to expanded resources venues and learning spaces today's learners are not as dependent on in class learning as they used to be Thus a deeper understanding of the terrain of out of class learning is of increasing significance in the current educational era Technology is part and parcel of out of class language learning and has been a primary source that learners actively use to construct language learning experience beyond the classroom Language learners of all ages around the world have been found to actively utilize technological resources to support their language learning beyond formal language learning contexts Insights into learners out of class autonomous use of technology for language learning are essential to our understanding of out of class learning and inform educators on how language learners could be better supported to maximize the educational potentials of technology to construct quality out of class learning experience

Teacher Education in Computer-Assisted Language Learning Euline Cutrim Schmid, 2017-08-24 Even though many pre service and in service teacher programs now address information and computer technology computer assisted language learning CALL teacher education is still reported as inadequate Why is this This book elaborates on some of the existing concerns and through deft analysis of longitudinal data begins to piece together a future road map for CALL teacher education The book adopts a sociocultural approach based on the principle that teaching and learning how to teach is a long term complex developmental process that operates through participation in social practices that come with the territory Euline Cutrim Schmid highlights the need for situated and localized learning pre service and in service collaboration and collaborative peer assisted learning Above all of this the book recommends and proves the efficacy of socially aware and professional reflective practice This is an essential sociolinguistic take on the computer learning revolution

WorldCALL: Sustainability and Computer-Assisted Language Learning Ana María Gimeno Sanz, Mike Levy, Françoise Blin, David Barr, 2015-12-17 This volume focuses on computer and digitally assisted language learning in all of its forms technology enhanced language learning network based language learning

mobile assisted language learning and so on in close relation to the topic of sustainability How can these technologies and techniques be implemented in a sustainable and repeatable way The book covers a wide range of areas in terms of this sustainability These include 1 education teacher learner training 2 normalisation integration 3 systems reliability support development 4 mobility mobile assisted language leaning 5 innovation trends research The volume samples research and practice in CALL from around the world organised into sections It has an introduction and a conclusion written by the editors Ana Gimeno Mike Levy Fran oise Blin and David Barr which covers the state of the art at the moment and directions it is likely to take in the future

Technology-Enhanced Language Teaching and Learning Karim Sadeghi, Michael Thomas, Farah Ghaderi, 2023-02-23 The Covid 19 pandemic has directly impacted the way teachers and learners worldwide teach and learn languages forcing numerous educational activities in technologically deprived contexts to stop altogether and those in technologically rich environments to go online on an emergency basis This volume provides a collection of theoretical and practical insights into the challenges and affordances faced globally during the pandemic and lessons learnt about the application of digital technologies for language teaching and learning The chapters explore the vital role of technology in its various forms including the internet social media CALL Computer Assisted Language Learning MALL Mobile Assisted Language Learning TALL Technology Assisted Language Learning and TELL Technology Enhanced Language Learning Topics explored include the new avenues digital technology has opened up for language teachers and learners options and challenges in applying technology in various contexts and how the second language education industry could have been adversely impacted at the time of the pandemic without technological affordances The contributions showcase studies from various geographical contexts revealing how the global crisis was received and tackled differently in Australia Hong Kong Iran Italy Japan New Zealand the UAE the UK and the USA

Language Teacher Education and Technology Jeong-Bae Son, Scott Windeatt, 2017-06-29 Language teachers competencies in computer assisted language learning CALL are a crucial factor affecting their own implementation of CALL However there is still a concern that many language teachers are not adequately prepared to make effective use of CALL or to identify and evaluate potential CALL solutions This can be the result of many different factors and raises the question of how to train teachers to develop their CALL knowledge and skills to a greater degree The discussion of approaches to training language teachers in the use of technology adopted in areas of Australia the UK and the US provides valuable insights for those already involved in this area and inspiration for those who have some interest in carrying out this kind of training but as yet have little or no experience This book explores the current status of CALL teacher education and discusses issues and challenges CALL teacher educators face in their own contexts Specifically it looks at postgraduate CALL courses offered at different universities to find ways of improving CALL teacher training It represents the first overview of a topic that is relevant to most postgraduate courses in Applied Linguistics or TESOL across the globe The use of technology for language learning and teaching is increasingly common but as is so often the case training for teachers in how to use that technology remains limited to a large extent by lack of expertise among trainers

Task-Based English Language Teaching in the Digital Age Valentina Morgana, 2023-06-15 This book illustrates the developments of task based language teaching TBLT approaches in relation to the evolution of digital technologies It highlights how technology mediated TBLT principles can support English as a Foreign Language EFL learning and contribute to understanding new classroom dynamics Drawing from the key theoretical concepts of TBLT the author discusses the integration of tasks and technologies from a secondary education perspective which is often under represented in the TBLT literature Morgana looks at how the EFL secondary classroom has been recently re conceptualised as a social place whose boundaries go far behind the traditional school settings This book provides theoretical approaches and classroom implementation practices by presenting four case studies on the different L2 skills reading writing listening and speaking The volume is organised into two main sections The first section focuses on the theoretical approaches to TBLT and highlights the key concepts behind this methodology This section also looks at the recent development of a technology mediated TBLT framework and its implementations in various EFL educational contexts The second section presents four case studies of secondary school EFL learners in Italy Each case study focuses on a different language skill providing examples of classroom practices in both blended and online learning settings Pedagogical recommendations for teachers are provided at the end of each case study The book adopts a multimodal approach and aims at providing scholars in applied linguistics and TBLT practitioners with theories and implementation practices to understand the ways technologies are shaping tasks and mediating students learning processes
