

The image shows the interior of a grand, historic house. The focal point is a large, ornate clock in the center, featuring a white statue of a winged figure on top. The room is characterized by its high ceiling, which has a large, colorful stained-glass dome and a decorative frieze. The walls are covered in patterned wallpaper, and the floor is made of dark wood. Several large, dark columns support the ceiling. On the right, a dark wooden cabinet with a decorative 'D' monogram is visible. The overall atmosphere is one of elegance and historical significance.

An American Palace Chicago's Samuel M Nickerson House:

An American Palace David Bagnall, 2011 An American Palace Chicago's Samuel M Nickerson House explores the rich and varied history of one of Chicago's grandest Gilded Age residences. Commissioned by Chicago banker Samuel M Nickerson in 1879, the house was designed by the architectural firm Burling and Whitehouse of Chicago and finished in 1883 during a time of unprecedented economic growth in the Midwest between the end of the Civil War and the outbreak of World War I. Following a long and checkered history of both private and institutional ownership, the property was established as a museum in 2003 by Chicago philanthropist Richard H Driehaus and underwent a meticulous and extensive renovation before opening to the public in 2008. In addition to featuring exceptionally restored woodwork, stained glass, and tiling, the museum also holds a diverse collection of decorative and fine arts from the period between 1880 and 1920, including one of the country's leading private collections of works by preeminent American designer Louis Comfort Tiffany. Today, the Driehaus Museum offers visitors an opportunity to experience first-hand the prevailing design philosophies of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Beautifully illustrated, this volume provides a comprehensive history and stunning photographic tour of the Samuel M Nickerson house while firmly situating it within Chicago's rich legacy of architectural and interior design. The History of the Development of Building Construction in Chicago Frank Alfred Randall, John D. Randall, 1999. The second edition of History of the Development of Building Construction in Chicago is a tribute to Frank Randall's vision and resource to Chicago area architects, engineers, preservation specialists, and other members of the building industry. BOOK JACKET AIA Guide to Chicago Alice Sinkevitch, Laurie McGovern Petersen, 2004. Completely revised and updated, the AIA Guide to Chicago Second Edition is the liveliest and most wide-ranging guide ever written about Chicago's architecture. More than a thousand individual buildings are featured, along with more than four hundred photos, many taken expressly for this volume, and thirty-five specially commissioned maps. The book is arranged geographically so that the user, whether Chicago citizen or visitor, can tour each area of the city as conveniently as possible. Building descriptions focus on the illuminating but easily overlooked details that give the behind-the-scenes, often unexpected story of why a building took the shape it did. And in the best Chicago tradition, this guide does not shy away from opinions where opinions are called for. Comprehensively researched, meticulously written, and more than thorough. AIA Guide to Chicago American Institute of Architects.
