

The book cover features a detailed illustration of a lunar base. In the upper left, a large, curved portion of the Earth is visible against the blackness of space. The main scene is set on the Moon's surface, which is covered in grey, cratered soil. In the foreground, a lunar rover with large, treaded wheels and various scientific instruments is parked. To the right of the rover, a large, white, dome-shaped structure, resembling an igloo or a small habitat, is partially buried in the lunar soil. A small figure of an astronaut is visible near the entrance of this dome. In the background, more lunar hills and another smaller dome are visible. The title 'An Igloo on the Moon' is written in a large, white, serif font across the upper right portion of the cover. Below the title, the subtitle 'Exploring Architecture' is written in a smaller, white, serif font. The authors' names, 'Adrian Buckley and David Jenkins', are printed in a white, serif font in the lower right area. The overall composition suggests a focus on architectural design in a challenging, extraterrestrial environment.
