money We misjudge risky situations We are prone to herding sometimes peer pressure leads us blindly to copy others around us other times copying others helps us to learn quickly about new unfamiliar situations This Very Short Introduction explores the reasons why we make irrational decisions how we decide quickly why we make mistakes in risky situations our tendency to procrastination and how we are affected by social influences personality mood and emotions The implications of understanding the rationale for our own financial behaviour are huge Behavioural economics could help policy makers to understand the people behind their policies enabling them to design more effective policies while at the same time we could find ourselves assaulted by increasingly savvy marketing Michelle Baddeley concludes by looking forward to see what the future of behavioural economics holds for us
