An Introduction to Green Criminology & Environmental Justice Angus Nurse, 2016 A comprehensive introduction to green criminology this book is a discussion of the relationship between mainstream criminal justice and green crimes Focused on environmental harm within the context of criminal justice this book takes a global perspective and Introduces students to different theoretical perspectives in green criminology Looks at the victims of environmental crime throughout Covers topics such as wildlife crimes animal abuse the causes of environmental crime regulation exploitation environmental activism policing prosecution and monitoring Designed to help readers develop a thorough understanding of the principles of environmental justice and green criminology as well as contemporary developments this book will be excellent support to student of green criminology and environmental crime

Green Criminology Michael J. Lynch, Michael A. Long, Paul B. Stretesky, Kimberly L. Barrett, 2017-08-15 This book provides an overview and assessment of green criminology Based on a political economic analysis Green Criminology draws attention to the ways in which the political economic organization of capitalism causes ecological destruction and disorganization Focusing on real world impact chapters include political economic examinations of ecological withdrawals ecological additions toxic towns wildlife poaching and trafficking environmental justice environmental laws and nongovernment environmental organizations The book also explores how ecological footprint planetary boundary analysis and other scientific research applies to green criminological analysis Provided by publisher

Green Criminology and Green Theories of Justice Michael J. Lynch, Michael A. Long, Paul B. Stretesky, 2019-12-11 This book offers an alternative analysis of the various theories and dimensions of green and environmental justice which are rooted in political economy Much green criminological literature sidelines political economic theoretical insights and therefore with this work the authors enrich the field by vigorously exploring such perspectives It engages with a number of studies relevant to a political economic approach to justice in order to make two key arguments that capitalism has produced profound ecological injustices and that the concept of ecological justice human and ecological rights itself needs critiquing Green Criminology and Green Theories of Justice is a timely text which urges the field to revisit its radical roots in social justice while broadening its disciplinary horizons to include a meaningful analysis of political economy and its role in producing and responding to environmental harm and injustice Green Criminology and the Law James Gacek, Richard Jochelson, 2022-01-01 This edited collection is grounded in a green criminological approach to understand whether the law both in effect and implications reflects refracts or sublimates the social political and ecological conditions of our times Since its initial proposal in the 1990s green criminology has focused the criminological gaze on a wide array of harms and crimes affecting humans animals other than humans ecological systems and the planet as a whole As a continuously blossoming field of criminological inquiry green criminology recognizes and examines behaviours that are both illegal and legal yet detrimental and in varying ways has made great efforts to provide insight into harms in a more fulsome manner At the same time there have been many significant legal instances domestic and international including case law legislation regulation treaties agreements and executive directives which have troubled the law s understanding of green harms illegal and legal activity pushing legal boundaries in the process Recognizing that humanity and nature are inextricably integrated Green Criminology and the Law reflects the range and depth of high quality research and scholarship combining contributions from established scholars willing to explore new topics and recent entrants who are breaking new scholarly ground

Environmental Justice in Early Victorian Literature Adrian Tait, 2023-08-30 This innovative new book combines environmental justice scholarship with a material ecocriticism to explore the way in which early Victorian literature 1837 1860 responded to the growing problem of environmental injustice As this book emphasises environmental injustice simply the convergence of poverty and pollution was not an isolated phenomenon but a structural form of inequality a product of industrial modernity s radical reformation of British society it particularly affected the working classes As each chapter reveals in detail this form of environmental inequality or classism drew sharply critical reactions from figures as diverse as Thomas Carlyle Friedrich Engels Charles Dickens and John Ruskin and from within the Chartist movement as working class writers themselves reacted to the hazardous realities of a divided society But as this book also reveals these writers recognised that a truly just society respects the needs of the nonhuman and takes account of the material world in all its own aliveness even if only tentatively they reached for a more inclusive emergent form of justice that might address the social and ecological impacts of industrial modernity an idea which is no less relevant today This book represents an indispensable resource for scholars and students working in the fields of Victorian literature environmental justice and ecocriticism

Green Criminology Rob White, Diane Heckenberg, 2014-02-03 Over the past ten years the study of environmental harm and crimes against nature has become an increasingly popular area of research amongst criminologists This book represents the first international comprehensive and introductory text for green criminology offering a concise exposition of theory and concepts and providing extensive geographical coverage diversity and depth to the many issues pertaining to environmental harm and crime Divided into three sections the book draws on a range of international case studies and examples and looks at the conceptual and methodological foundations of green criminology before examining in detail areas of environmental crime and harm and how they are addressed including climate change and social conflict abuse and harm to animals threats to bio diversity pollution and toxic waste environmental victims environmental regulation law enforcement and courts environmental forensic studies environmental crime prevention Green Criminology is packed with pedagogical features including dialogue boxes case examples discussion questions and lists of further reading and is perfect for students around the world engaged with green criminology and crime against the environment Criminal Justice, Wildlife Conservation and Animal Rights in the Anthropocene Ragnhild A. Sollund, Martine S.B. Lie, 2025-03-18 This book addresses one of today's most urgent issues the loss of wildlife and habitat which together constitute an ecological crisis Combining studies from different disciplines such as law political science and criminology with a focus on animal rights the chapters explore the successes and failures of the international wildlife conservation and trade treaties CITES and the BERN Convention While these conventions have played a crucial role in protecting endangered species from trade and in the rewilding of European large carnivores the case studies in this book demonstrate huge variations in their implementation and enforcement across Europe In conclusion the book advocates for a non anthropocentric policy approach to strengthen wildlife conservation in Europe

Organized Crime in the 21st Century Hans Nelen, Dina Siegel, 2023-03-10 This edited volume brings together the most recent research about various aspects of organized crime and the responses that have developed worldwide as a result to contain serious criminal acts This book focuses particularly on the way criminal networking and illegal markets have developed during the first two decades of the 21st century It examines how these developments have influenced the motivations and opportunities to commit organized crime The volume not only focuses on illegal activities in illegal markets such as drug and human trafficking but also addresses organized crime and deviance in various legitimate industries The contributions were presented at seminars of the Centre for Information and Research on Organized Crime CIROC and will be of particular interest to organized crime scholars and researchers as well as advanced students of criminology across the world

Global Green Crime and Ecojustice Daan van Uhm, Dina Siegel, 2025-10-28 In recent decades environmental crime has become one of the largest criminal activities in the world with disastrous impacts on the environment and enormous costs for future generations The environmental impact is illustrated by the rapid disappearance of rainforests large scale pollution climate change and the mass extinction of species Environmental crime has become a global issue and thus needs to be anticipated in social and scientific thinking The studies of green criminology environmental sociology environmental law political ecology and conservation studies among other disciplines are increasingly engaged with crimes and harms against the environment Bringing together and combining these approaches in this edited volume is crucial to understand and reflect on the environmental challenges that we face in the 21st century
