Managing the Knowledge-Intensive Firm Nicolaj Ejler, Flemming Poulfelt, Fiona Czerniawska, 2012-04-27

Over the last decade there has been a substantial rise in the number of knowledge intensive firms constituted primarily of professionals. The core assets of these businesses are the people themselves. Handle them badly and they may defect or stall. Successful managers of knowledge intensive firms must create meaning among and inspire their employees to ensure high performance. To achieve this, leaders must understand how to target each employee's ambitions and challenges to facilitate their personal and professional development. This book examines what sets knowledge intensive firms apart from other types of organizations and the resultant organizational and strategic differences in business models, talent management and client handling approaches. The authors bring their own complementary perspectives on the subject: one as the manager of a private consulting firm with a strong research background, another as a business school professor whose practice based skills are fundamental to his work, and a third a world leading commentator on professional service firms acting as a consultant, business school researcher and a manager. Ejler Poulsen and Czerniawska present a new model for transforming the management of knowledge intensive firms which is supported throughout with practical examples and cases.

The Vanishing American Lawyer Thomas D. Morgan, 2010-02-01. Over 4,000 lawyers lost their positions at major American law firms in 2008 and 2009. In The Vanishing American Lawyer, Professor Thomas Morgan discusses the legal profession and the need for both law students and lawyers to adapt to the needs and expectations of clients in the future. The world needs people who understand institutions that create laws and how to access those institutions' works, but lawyers are no longer part of a profession that is uniquely qualified to advise on a broad range of distinctly legal questions. Clients will need advisors who are more specialized than many lawyers are today and who have more expertise in non-legal issues. Many of today's lawyers do not have a special ability to provide such services. While American lawyers have been hesitant to change the ways they can improve upon meeting client needs, lawyers in other countries, notably Great Britain and Australia, have been better at adapting. Law schools must also recognize the world their students will face and prepare them to operate successfully within it. Professor Morgan warns that lawyers must adapt to new client needs and expectations. The term professional should be applied to individuals who deserve praise for skilled and selfless efforts, but this term may lead to occupational suicide if it becomes a justification for not seeing and
