Series Editor: Bernard Hall

Academic Encounters: American Studies is a course-based reading, study skills, and writing book that introduces students to topics in American history and culture that are relevant to life in the United States today. These high-interest topics include issues of multicultural rights, racial and linguistic differences, and the digital revolution, gender-based differences, the Internet, jazz, and the legacy and the emergence of American culture and influence from around the world.

The companion book, Academic Encounters: American Studies, develops students' reading, study skills, and discussion skills, writing practice, grammar and business and a variety of other and generalizing activities. The topics, which correspond with those in the reading, study skills, and writing book, include social rights, institutional American culture, the Internet, the digital revolution, and the globalization of American life.

About the Series

Academic Encounters is an academic preparation series that uses a course-based approach. There are two books in the series for each content field: one Academic Encounters title that teaches reading, study skills, and writing, and one Academic Encounters title that concentrates on developing students' listening, speaking, and discussion skills. The two books may be used independently or they may be used together to form a complete communication course.

Communicative Competence

Academic Encounters: American Studies introduces students to many of the topics and skills in the United States secondary school standards for American history and social studies.

CONTENT SKILLS

Many of the topics in Academic Encounters: American Studies are relevant to the skills listed on the TEFL® and TOEFL tests. For a complete list of the skills taught in Academic Encounters: American Studies, see the Skills Index on page 100.
