1. The first step in the process of DNA replication is the unwinding of the double helix. This is done by the enzyme helicase, which breaks the hydrogen bonds between the two strands.

2. Once the strands are unwound, each strand serves as a template for the synthesis of a new complementary strand. This is done by the enzyme DNA polymerase.

3. The new strands are synthesized in the opposite direction to the template strands. This is because the template strands are oriented 3' to 5', while the new strands are oriented 5' to 3'.

4. The process of DNA replication is semi-conservative, meaning that each new DNA molecule consists of one original template strand and one newly synthesized strand.

5. The final step in the process is the proofreading and correction of any errors that may have occurred during synthesis. This is done by the enzyme DNA proofreading.

6. The completed DNA molecules are then packaged into chromosomes, which are the structures that carry the genetic information.

7. The process of DNA replication is essential for the growth and development of all living organisms.

8. The process of DNA replication is also involved in the repair of damaged DNA.

9. The process of DNA replication is a complex and highly regulated process.

10. The process of DNA replication is a fundamental process in molecular biology.
