

Challenging Transition Theory: The Labor Movement, Radical Reform, and Transition to Democracy in South Africa

GLENN ADLER and EDDIE WEBSTER

INTRODUCTION

The truly remarkable nature of South Africa's transition was captured in the election and the inauguration of Nelson Mandela as the new president during the last week of April and the first week of May 1994. Contrary to widespread expectations of violence descending into chaos, the three voting days were among the most peaceful in the country's recent history. Whites and Blacks queued for hours—indeed days in some cases—to cast their votes. For South Africans, it became a deeply emotional experience, with the overwhelming majority of eligible voters participating in this first-ever democratic election. The atmosphere of euphoria carried through into the following week of national celebrations, culminating in an all-day gathering outside the former seat of White political domination, the Union Buildings in Pretoria. Music and dancing provided by South Africa's best entertainers continued well into the night, and similar scenes of jubilation were repeated throughout the country.

However, the ambiguous character of this astonishing climax to South Africa's transition to democracy was clearest when Mandela stepped from his automobile to be ushered to the inaugural platform by none other than the White general

We thank Erik Olin Wright for his extremely valuable comments on two earlier drafts of this article which helped us specify our model, and for his computer skills in generating the figures contained in the article. We also thank Lorie Karvonen for his useful comments as discussant on our article at the International Sociological Association meeting in Bielefeld, Germany, in July 1994. We acknowledge John Saul for sharing his work on unions and transitions in South Africa and for very constructive discussions, which helped clarify our argument.

Commons, Selig Perlman, John Bertram Andrews, 1918-12 The Formation of Labour Movements, 1870-1914 Marcel van der Linden, Jürgen Rojahn, 1990 The twenty seven articles presented in this volume mark the first stage of an international research project set up after the comprehensive reorganization of the International Institute of Social History in 1987 The aim of this extensive book project is to study the development of working class movements using comparative research in an international framework in the time period 1870 1914 Included in this study are papers by experts on as many countries both European and non European as possible with a modern labour movement Britain Belgium The Netherlands Sweden Norway Denmark France Italy Spain Germany Switzerland Austria The Czech Workers Movement in the Habsburg Empire Hungary Rumania Bulgaria Serbia Greece The Jewish Workers Movement in the Russian Empire Poland Finland United States of America Australia New Zealand South Africa Argentina and Japan The Daily Grind Marquita R.

Walker, 2014-10-27 The Daily Grind How Workers Navigate the Employment Relationship introduces students to the tensions between labor and management within the U S employment relationship and explores how workers operating in a socially and culturally structured system of capitalism are influenced and manipulated by economic institutions and polity which exploit devalue and dehumanize workers in the name of corporate profit The text covers how the American work ethic of the early nineteenth century helped shape the current perspective on the labor management relationship and how over time the Protestant and patriarchal influences of that period have countered the collective actions of workers in profound ways The text further explores the effect of societal cultural and economic structures both global and local which limit workers ability to achieve the American Dream and result in depressed economic conditions and discouraged workers The text s focus on the current economic inequality and lack of social mobility challenges the current neoliberal ideology that capitalism is the best economic system The overarching framework for The Daily Grind How Workers Navigate the Employment Relationship is situated in Labor Process Theory LPT which explores the control and resistance dichotomy between labor and management the systematic deskilling of the workforce in order to increase production and increase owners profits and examines conflict over control of the labor process An extension of Marxist theory about the organization of work LPT explores the employment relationship the control of work the payment of work the skills necessary for work and the facilitation of work

Statemaking and Social Movements Charles Bright, Susan Harding, 2025-10-01 Statemaking does not end once states emerge but is a continuous process argue the contributors to this volume In their view states are not static structures that act upon society nor are states simple reflections of economic relations states are instead highly dynamic structures that are constantly built up dismantled and transformed by complex interplays of political social and economic processes This collection of original essays by leading scholars in the fields of history anthropology sociology and economics argues for historically specific theories of states and politics in place of ahistorical models Case studies range in scope from Aztec Mexico and feudal Europe to Nazi Germany and contemporary America What emerges from this ground breaking interdisciplinary dialogue is a historically sensitive way of thinking about states politics and social movements and the transformative relationship between states and societies The Cambridge Economic History of Europe Michael Moïssey Postan, H.
