Turbulence and Order in Economic Development Hazel Gray,2018-02-08 The terms of debate on the role of institutions in economic development are changing Stable market institutions in particular secure private property rights and democratically accountable governments that uphold the rule of law are widely seen to be a pre requisite for economic transformation in low income countries yet over the last thirty years economic growth and structural transformation has surged forward in a range of countries where market and state institutions have differed these ideals as well as from each other Turbulence and Order in Economic Development studies the role of the state in two such countries examining the interplay between market liberalization institutions and the distribution of power in Tanzania and Vietnam Tanzania and Vietnam were two of the poorest countries in the world in the early 1980s but over the last thirty years both have experienced significant changes in the pace and character of economic development While both countries experienced faster rates of GDP growth their paths of economic transformation were very different as Vietnam experienced rapid poverty reduction associated with the expansion of manufacturing while Tanzania's path of industrialization was characterized by the rise of mining and a much slower pace of poverty reduction Employing a political settlements approach this book considers the comparative role of the state in driving economic transformation In both countries the experiences of socialism continued to shape the role of the state in the economy even after extensive market liberalization however the distribution of political and economic power was very different This had important consequences for the overlapping role of the state in generating political order and in driving economic transformation Turbulence and Order in Economic Development studies the formal and informal ways that the state influenced economic transformation through its role in public financial management land and industrial policy Urban Transformations:

Centres, Peripheries and Systems Daniel P. O'Donoghue, 2016-02-11 Definitions of urban entities and urban typologies are changing constantly to reflect the growing physical extent of cities and their hinterlands These include suburbs sprawl edge cities gated communities conurbations and networks of places and such transformations cause conflict between central and peripheral areas at a range of spatial scales This book explores the role of cities their influence and the transformations they have undertaken in the recent past Ways in which cities regenerate how plans change how they are governed and how they react to the economic realities of the day are all explored Concepts such as polycentricity are explored to highlight the fact that cities are part of wider regions and the study of urban geography in the future needs to be cognisant of changing relationships within and between cities Bringing together studies from around the world at different scales from small town to megacity this volume captures a snapshot of some of the changes in city centres suburbs and the wider urban region In doing so it provides a deeper understanding of the evolving form and function of cities and their associated peripheral regions as well as their impact on modern twenty first century landscapes Demographic and Socioeconomic Changes in

Sabah Tey Nai Peng, Lai Siow Li, Jennifer Chan Kim Lian, 2022-05-13 Population and development are inextricably interrelated Population size and structure are crucial factors affecting opportunities pressures and constraints of society The high fertility and rapid population growth in low resource countries have hampered socio economic development However as fertility began to fall rapidly since the middle of the 20th century many post demographic transition countries are undergoing rapid population ageing and encountering labour shortages Sabah is the second most populous state in Malaysia with about 4 million population in 2020 It has registered the second highest population growth rate over the past four decades brought about by the influx of migrant workers due to the severe labour shortage The number of non citizens grew from 420 thousand in 1990 to 1 094 million in 2020 Non citizens made up close to 30% of the state population during 2013 2018 up from around 26% in 2009 2010 However the negative growth of the non citizens in Sabah during 2018 2020 has resulted in zero growth of the state population This book is a sequel to the series on Revisiting Population Development Nexus The Past in Its Future 2016 and Demographic Transition and Socio economic Development in Malaysia 2020 by the Universiti Malaysia Press Given Sabah s unique socio demographic situation this book will provide a comprehensive analysis of the demographic situation emphasizing the young generation and the changing roles and status of women in Sabah The book consists of 14 chapters covering population situation analysis at the state and district levels functional population projection gender differentials in education employment and income internal and international migration marriage fertility and fertility preferences family planning family and gender roles youth in development adolescent sexual and reproductive health women and youth in the hotel industry and growth of the non citizen population Each chapter examines gender differentials and provides a comparative analysis with Sarawak and Peninsular Malaysia The book will serve as a useful reference for planners and administrators from the public and private sectors researchers and students
