The policy on class attendance: You are expected to attend all class meetings (including labs) If you are unable to be in class on days when quizzes are given please notify me. Make-up exams will be given if you have a legal excuse. No make-up labs can be offered. If you have a legal excuse, arrangements will be made.

Statement for disabled students: "If you have a physical, psychological, or learning disability which might affect your performance in this class, please contact the Office of Disability Services, 126 B&E 641-3609 as soon as possible. The Disability Services Office will determine appropriate accommodations based on medical documentation."

Course Description In this course we will examine the molecular organization and the interaction of cellular components in prokaryotic (and when applicable - eukaryotic) cells. The organization and expression of genes will be examined including: gene structure, gene regulation and transcription and DNA replication (with special emphasis on the proteins involved).

Course goals and objectives: 1) Introduce students to the basic theoretical concepts of Cell/Molecular Biology including: (a) interactions between molecules in cells (b) protein structure and function (c) nucleic acid structure and function (d) biosynthesis of macromolecules. 2) Introduce students to some of the basic laboratory procedures commonly used in Cell/Molecular Biology. 3) Provide students with the opportunity to review recent discoveries in the field. 4) Attempts will be made to integrate the concepts of Cell/Molecular Biology with other areas of Biology.

Assessment of students: Students will be evaluated on their performance on: weekly quizzes, final quiz, laboratory write ups and a brief presentation. Extra credit (up to 5%) will be awarded to students who actively participate in class discussions.
