childhood in the fields and woods surrounding the farming communities of the island. Educated at the island's Cavendish School, she stayed with her father and his second wife in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, while attending high school and eventually earned a teacher's license from Prince of Wales College in 1893. She gave up teaching and moved back to her grandparents' farm after the death of her grandfather, taking a position as a proofreader with an area newspaper briefly while pursuing a career as a writer. A few poems and short stories were published before she finished Anne of Green Gables in 1904, but it would be four years and numerous rejections later in 1908 before her first novel found a publisher. An immediate success, the book launched her long and successful writing career. She married in 1911 and, following a honeymoon in England and Scotland, the couple settled in Leaskdale, north of Uxbridge, Ontario, where her husband served as parish minister. They had three sons, one of whom died in infancy, and while raising her children, Montgomery continued to write further Anne works, poetry, fiction, and non-fiction. In 1923, Montgomery became the first Canadian woman to join the Royal Society of Arts in Britain. In 1935, she became a member of the Literary and Artistic Institute of France and was awarded the Order of the British Empire. As the popularity of her good and jolly stories with happy endings declined by the late 1930s, so too did the health of both Montgomery and her husband. He retired from the ministry, and they moved to Swasea, west of Toronto, where both apparently suffered from severe depression along with physical decline. In 1938, she suffered a nervous breakdown while he underwent electroshock treatments for mental health issues. Lucy Maud Montgomery Macdonald died of congestive heart failure in Toronto on April 24, 1942. Her body lay in state at Green Gables, following which she was buried in nearby Cavendish Cemetery.
