

Theory Of Architecture

The author says that 'the purpose of architecture is to design buildings' is an unsatisfactory definition. Why does he say so? In that case, what is he suggesting as the real purpose of architecture? Explain. 'The purpose of architecture is to design buildings' is not only an unsatisfactory definition but is also an understatement. . "It is probably fair to say that the matters of the definition and the purpose of architecture have never been settled. These are issues about which there is a great deal of confusion and debate which is strange considering the human activity is literally older than pyramids"(Unwin, 2014).

Architecture has evolved over centuries, started as shelter and protection from the surrounding, it is now sensibility, communication, functionality and representation of ideas. It has more significance and is more meaningful as it's a part of one's daily life. It serves different types of branches according to the need and desire of the users. It is an intellectual work of art and is not confined to solitary abstraction but rather has definite meaning and purpose. "One cannot contradict this definition, but it does not help very much either; in a way it actually diminishes one's conception of architecture, by limiting it to 'design of buildings'. Although it is not necessary to do so, one tends to think of buildings as object (like a vase, or a cigarette lighter) and architecture involves more than the design of objects" (Unwin, 2014). No doubt design is an important part of architecture but there's a lot more to it that is insightful. As design can be a thought, idea, experience or even just a feeling. So saying that architecture is 'design of objects' is yet another vague definition and is also considered as a misconception as it limits the thinking of the people. "Here, the architecture of a building, group of buildings, a city,

An Essay on Architecture Marc-Antoine Laugier, 1777 This translation uses the text of the original 1753 edition It also includes additions made by Laugier for the edition of 1755 as well as the Avertissement for that edition which contains Laugier's rebuttal to his critics An introduction by Wolfgang Herrmann gives details of Laugier's life and the context in which this book was written The Essai is important as a key document in 18th century art theory It is invaluable for a thorough understanding of the Neoclassical aesthetic and its development from the rationalism of the Enlightenment An essay on architecture; in which its true principles are explained ... Adorned with a frontispiece, designed by Mr. Wale, etc. [By Marc Antoine Laugier.] Marc Antoine LAUGIER, 1755 What Is Architecture? Paul Shephard, 2013-03-25 British architect and critic Paul Shephard is a fresh new voice in current postmodern debates about the history and meaning of architecture In this wonderfully unorthodox quasi novelistic essay complete with characters and dialogue but no plot Shephard draws a boundary around the subject of architecture describing its place in art and technology its place in history and its place in our lives now At a time when it is fashionable to say that architecture is everything from philosophy to science to art to theory Shephard boldly and irreverently sets limits to the subject so that we may talk about architecture for what it is He takes strong positions names the causes of the problems and tells us how bad things are and how they can get better Along the way he marshals some unlikely but plausible witnesses who testify about the current state of architecture Instead of the usual claims or complaints by the usual suspects these observations are of an altogether different order Constructed as a series of fables many of them politically incorrect What is Architecture is a refreshing meditation on the options hopes possibilities and failures of shelter in society Essay On Architecture Laugier Marc-Antoine, 1901 An Essay on Architecture, 1755 An Essay on Architecture Marc-Antoine Laugier (Historiker, Jesuit, Kunsttheoretiker, Frankreich), Thomas Henry Lowth, Samuel Wale (Künstler), Benjamin Cole (Kupferstecher), Paul Waterhouse (Architekt), 1755
