The Routledge Companion to Religion and Science James W. Haag, Gregory R. Peterson, Michael L. Spezio, 2012-03-12 The field of religion and science is one of the most exciting and dynamic areas of research today This Companion brings together an outstanding team of scholars to explore the ways in which science intersects with the major religions of the world and religious naturalism The collection provides an overview of the field and also indicates ways in which it is developing Its multicultural breadth and scientific rigor on topics that are and will be compelling issues in the first part of the twenty first century and beyond will be welcomed by students and scholars alike

Severed Frances Larson, 2014-11-06 Our history is littered with heads Over the centuries they have decorated our churches festooned our city walls and filled our museums they have been props for artists and specimens for laboratory scientists trophies for soldiers and items of barter Today as videos of decapitations circulate online and cryonicists promise that our heads may one day live on without our bodies the severed head is as contentious and compelling as ever From shrunken heads to trophies of war from memento mori to Damien Hirst's With Dead Head from grave robbing phrenologists to enterprising scientists Larson explores the bizarre often gruesome and confounding history of the severed head Its story is our story

Partners in Palliative Care Mary Beth Morrissey, Bruce Jennings, 2013-10-31 The Collaborative for Palliative Care Collaborative is a grassroots consortium of public and private organizations that came together in 2005 for the purposes of studying the increasing need for palliative care and the methods for such care. It has grown from a small fledgling group to a membership of over 50 community based organizations and volunteers dedicated to improving care of the seriously ill through education, research, and advocacy. The Collaborative bridges policy, research, and practice in its initiatives and vision for the future. Partners in Palliative Care examines specific areas of concern that the Collaborative has addressed in its education programs and advocacy, as well as the collaborative processes that have been so successful in building community assets. Areas of concentration have been diverse and include advance care planning, relational communication paradigms, community capacity building, the role of culture and spirituality in palliative care, the meaning of pain and suffering for seriously ill individuals, and the ethics of health care costs in palliative and end of life systems of care. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Social Work in End of Life and Palliative Care.

Bioarchaeologists Speak Out Jane E. Buikstra, 2018-10-26 Bioarchaeologists who study human remains in ancient, historic, and contemporary settings are securely anchored within anthropology, as anthropologists, yet they have not taken on the pundit's way other subdisciplines within anthropology have. Popular science authors frequently and selectively use bioarchaeological data on demography, disease, violence, migration, and diet to buttress their poorly formed arguments about general trends in human behavior and health beginning with our earliest ancestors. While bioarchaeologists are experts on these subjects, bioarchaeology and bioarchaeological approaches have largely remained invisible to the public eye. Current issues such as climate change, droughts, warfare, violence, famine, and the effects of disease are media mainstays and are subjects familiar to bioarchaeologists, many of whom have empirical data and informed viewpoints both for topical exploration and also for predictions based on human behavior in deep time. The contributions in this volume will explore the how and where the data has been misused, present new ways of using evidence in the service of making new discoveries, and demonstrate ways that our long-term interdisciplinarity lends itself to transdisciplinary wisdom. We also consider possible reasons for bioarchaeological invisibility and offer advice concerning the absolute necessity of bioarchaeologists speaking out through social media.

Controversial Bodies John D. Lantos, 2011-09-07 Controversial, fascinating, disturbing, and often beautiful plastinated human bodies such as those found at Body Worlds exhibitions throughout the world have gripped the public's imagination. These displays have been lauded as educational, sparked protests, and drawn millions of visitors. This book looks at the powerful sway these corpses hold over their living audiences everywhere. Plastination was invented in the 1970s by German anatomist Gunther von Hagens. The process transforms living tissues into moldable plastic that can then be hardened into a permanent shape. Von Hagens first exhibited his expertly dissected, artfully posed plastinated bodies in Japan in 1995. Since then, his shows have continuously attracted so many paying customers that they have inspired imitators, brought accusations of unethical or even illegal behavior, and ignited vigorous debates among scientists, educators, religious leaders, and law enforcement officials. These lively, thought-provoking, and sometimes personal essays reflect on such public displays from ethical legal cultural religious pedagogical and aesthetic perspectives They examine what lies behind the exhibitions popularity and explore the ramifications of turning corpses into a spectacle of amusement Contributions from bioethicists historians physicians anatomists theologians and novelists dig deeply into issues that compel upset and unsettle us all

As recognized, adventure as with ease as experience not quite lesson, amusement, as competently as harmony can be gotten by just checking out a book Body Of Work Meditations On Mortality From The Human Anatomy Lab then it is not directly done, you could undertake even more almost this life, with reference to the world.
