Most, 2024-08-19 Given the limited durability of most textual supports texts must be reproduced if they are to survive And given the proliferation over time of users practices and places which need to have access to the texts that are important for cultural institutions this is particularly true for authoritative texts But the reproduction of texts by traditional means either orally or by hand inevitably produces variations These variations can arise because of inattention confusion misunderstanding deliberate modification physical damage and many other factors In general the more a text is reproduced the more variations are likely to occur But although the fact of textual variation in general is doubtless an anthropological universal the specific forms it takes and the specific attitudes to its occurrence seem to vary widely from culture to culture How variations develop in different cultures on the basis of which forms of scholarly practices collaborations and institutional frameworks what variants say about a culture's understandings of text authorship and collective authorship what happens when variants become creative and generate their own strands of tradition to what degree changes in transmission media and processes of distribution translations or the migration of texts into different cultural or institutional contexts can influence or be influenced by the development of variants these are the questions that this book addresses in a historical and culturally comparative perspective
